Grace Ashley Horsfall

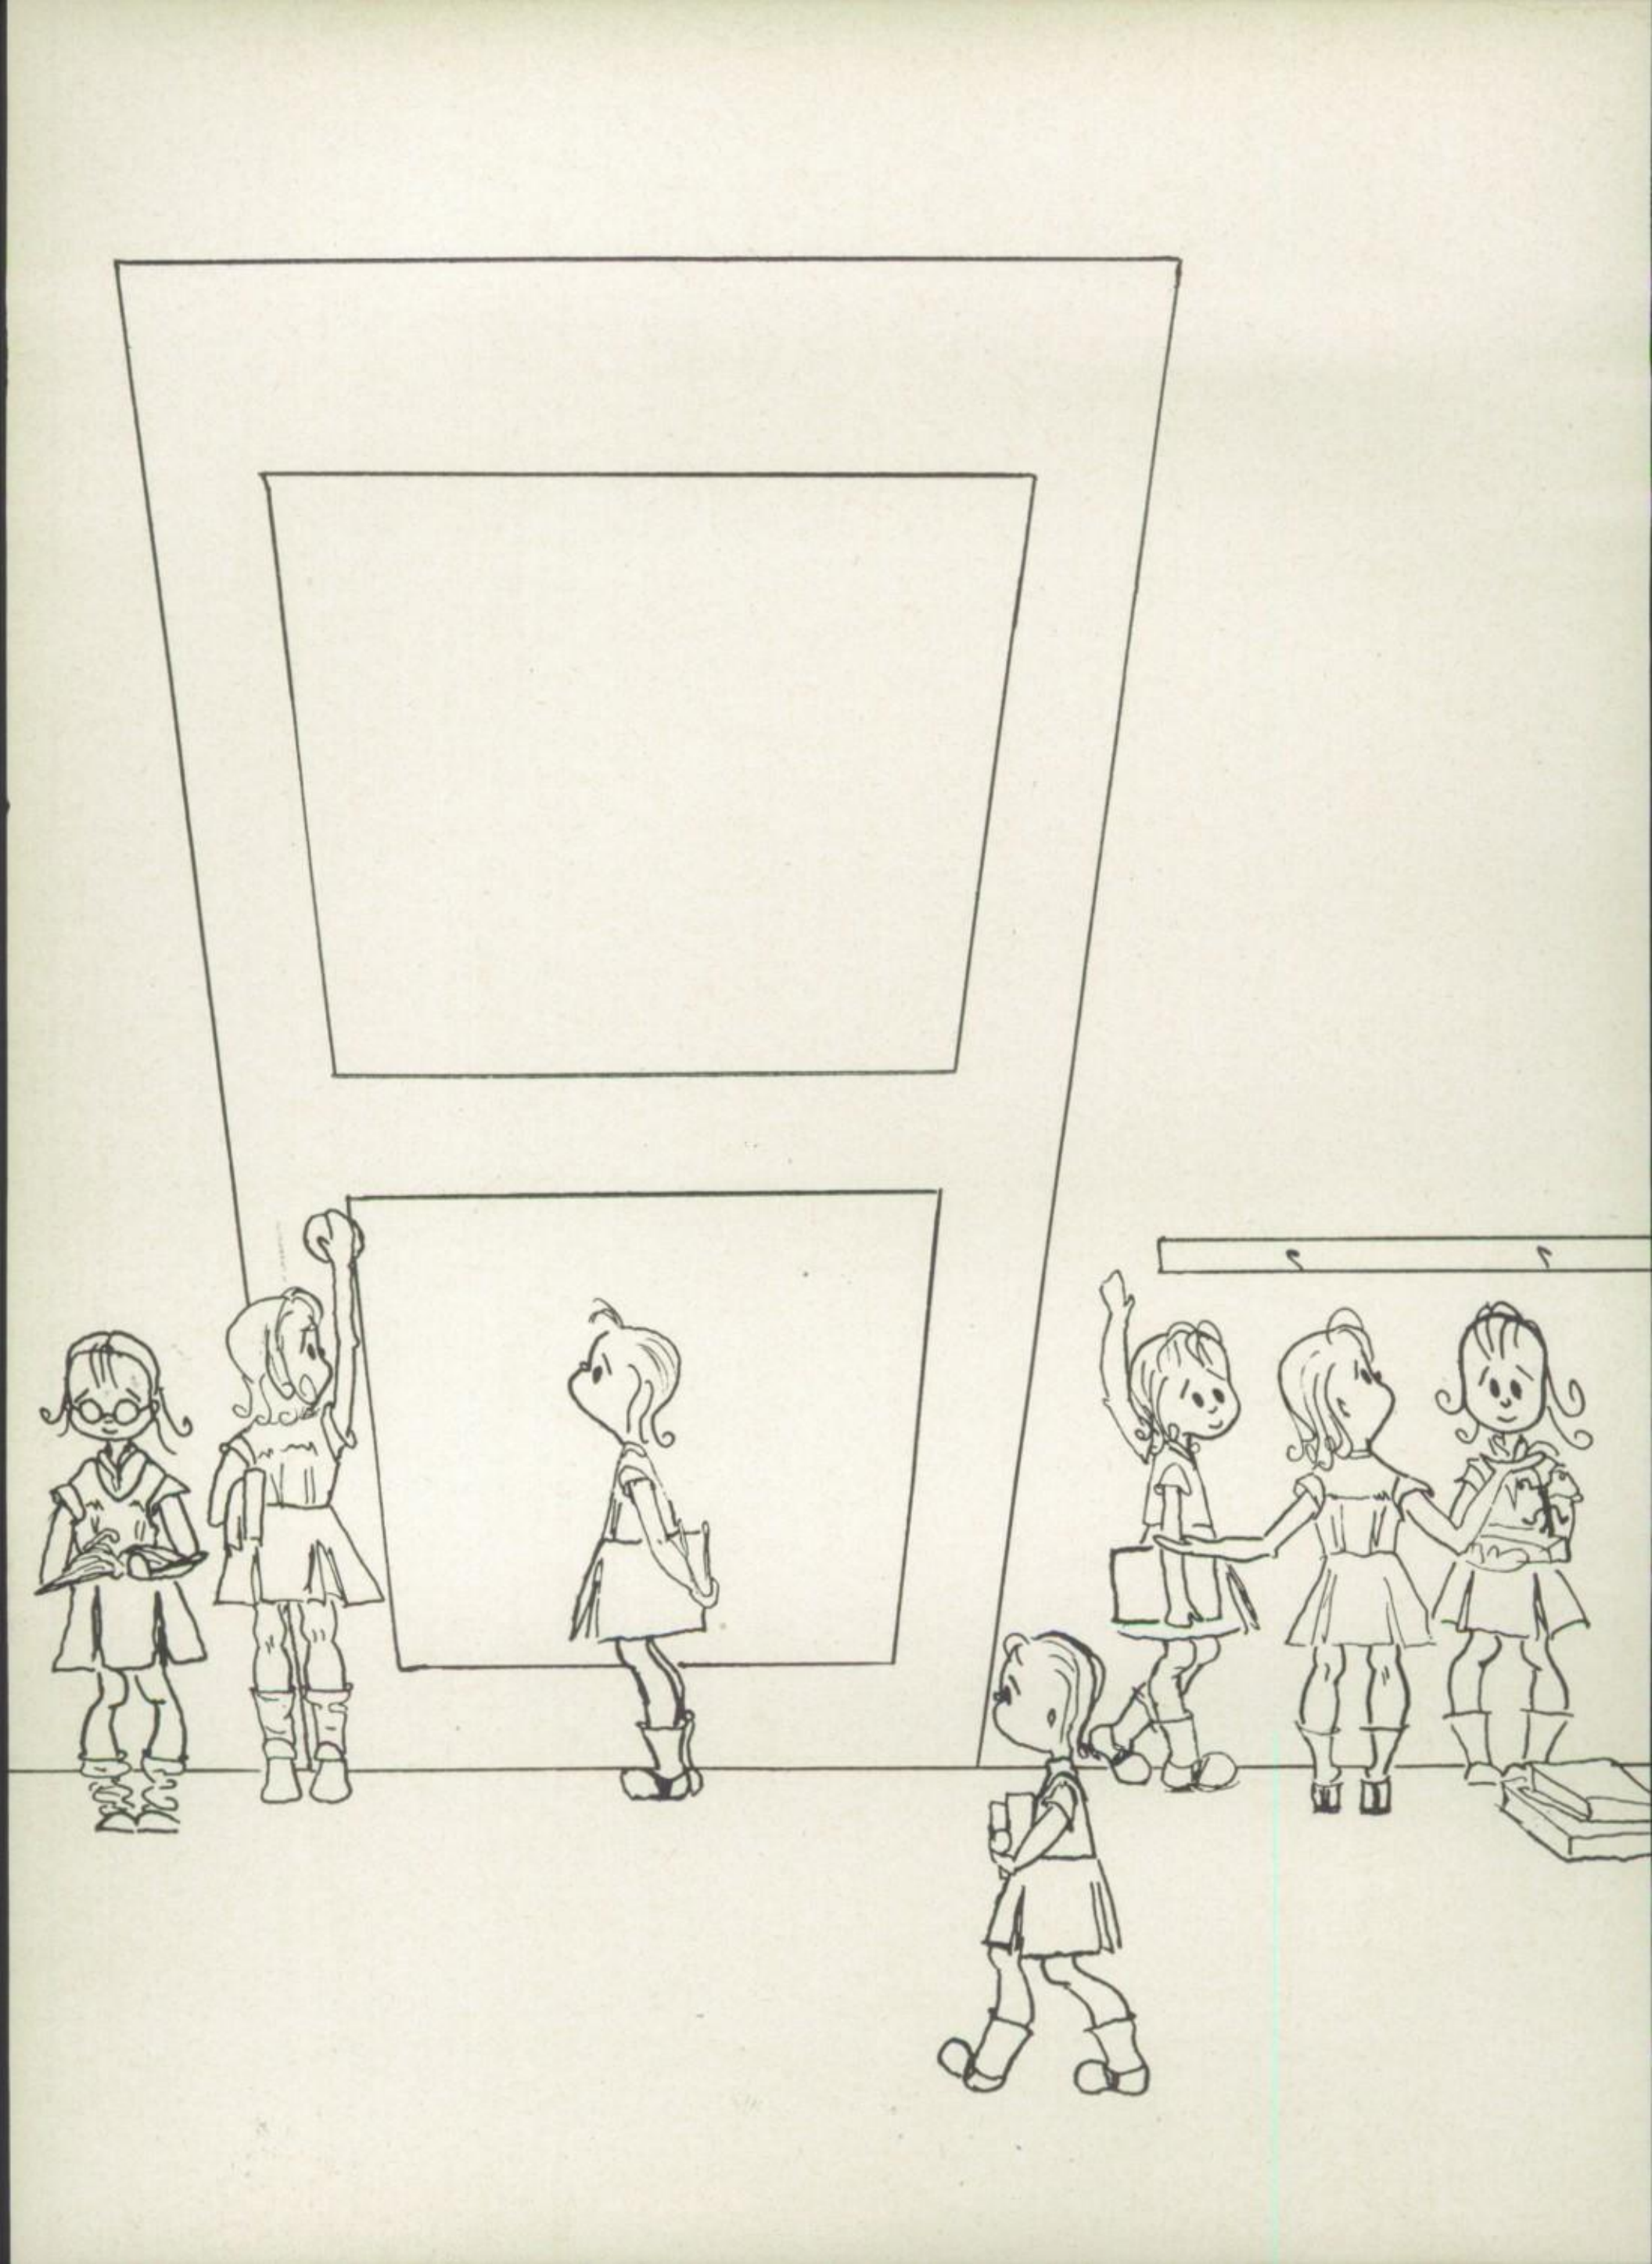
In Dedication

With one who came to Tudor Hall four years ago to begin her teaching career, members of the senior class feel a strong kinship. The really artistic among us have been fortunate to work in her classes. In the always cheery atmosphere of her studio, we have created decorations for our dances and props for the senior play. More than material things, she has taught us self-control and the value of a good attitude, and she has given us the example of her own good will. She has listened sympathetically to our problems. (We wish we had always heeded her good advice!) It is with deep sincerity and gratitude that we, the Class of 1953, dedicate our CHRONICLE to Miss Miss Grace Ashley Horsfall.

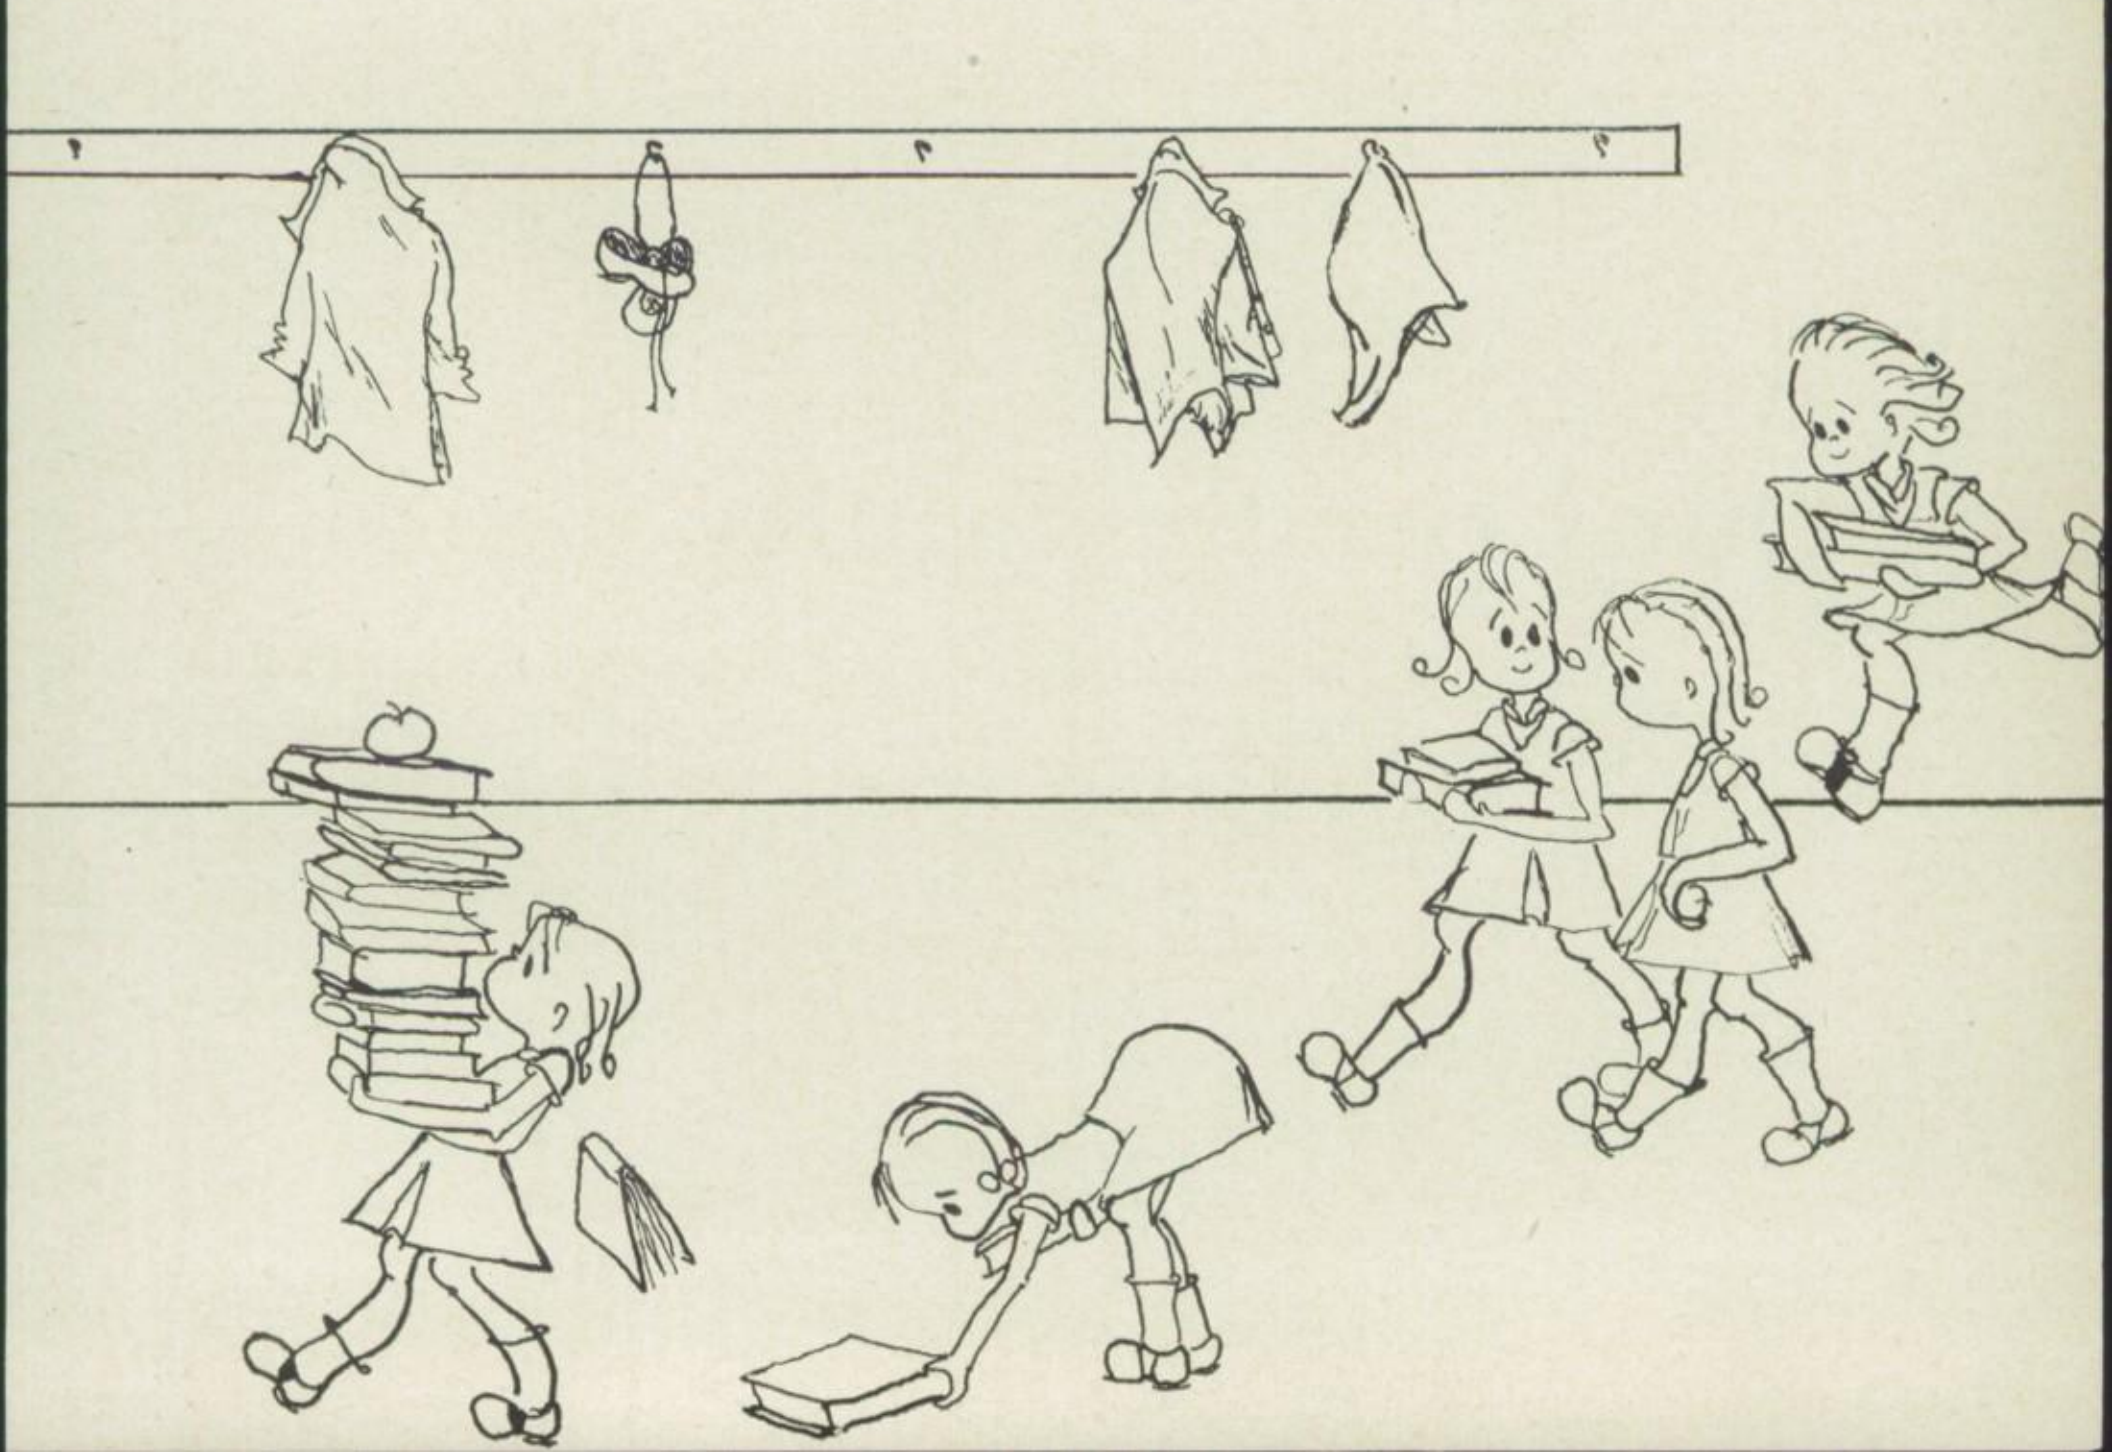
With Gratitude

Through the years many senior classes have tried to express their gratitude to Miss Stewart for the deep understanding and limitless wisdom she has shown in guiding them. As seniors we have come to know the significance of her patience, her never-failing humor, and her unyielding common sense, which have proved so invaluable in our lives. She is never too busy to help solve our problems, which may range from the choice of a college to the selection of a commencement dress. As we, the Class of 1953, take our places in the world, we hope that we shall always fulfill the high ideals set forth by Miss Stewart, our principal and our friend.

I. Hilda Stewart, Principal



FACULTY



Row I—Mrs. Patricia Maurey, Classes III, IV; Miss Audrey L. Ross, physical education, dance; Miss Barbara Stonemetz, physical education; Miss Libby Brodsky, music; Miss Lois Sutton, Spanish, French; Mrs. Suzanne Earnhart, Class VIII.

Row II—Mrs. Catherine Easton, remedial reading; Miss Dorothy E. McCullough, English; Miss Sara Lois Haber, history; Miss Hazel D. McKee, Latin, assistant principal; Miss Doris Beaman, Classes V, VI; Mrs. Mary I. Wood, library, history.

Row III—Miss Margie McCuistion, English; Mlle. Jacqueline Moscherosch, French; Miss Grace Horsfall, art; Miss Barbara Elliott, mathematics; Mrs. Gladys B. McColgin, mathematics; Miss Joyce Iwohn, drama, social studies; Miss Emily S. Rood, science; Miss Nell McMillan Frazier, drama; Mme. Yvonne Chamilovitch, French.

Our Friendly Faculty

From Burns's poetry to the McKinley tariff, from Newton's law to the conjugation of "amo," the Tudor faculty guides students of all ages through all classes. We, the students, are vastly influenced by our teachers' words, actions, and deeds. We are oftentimes unappreciative of their help, advice, and constructive criticism, but now we take an opportunity to thank the faculty for what they have done. We do so with a grateful sincerity. Through their untiring efforts they have made our life here at Tudor Hall fuller and more enjoyable.

Staff

Literature and the Arts

There's music in the air as Sue Ann Aikins and Miss Brodsky rehearse for an assembly program.

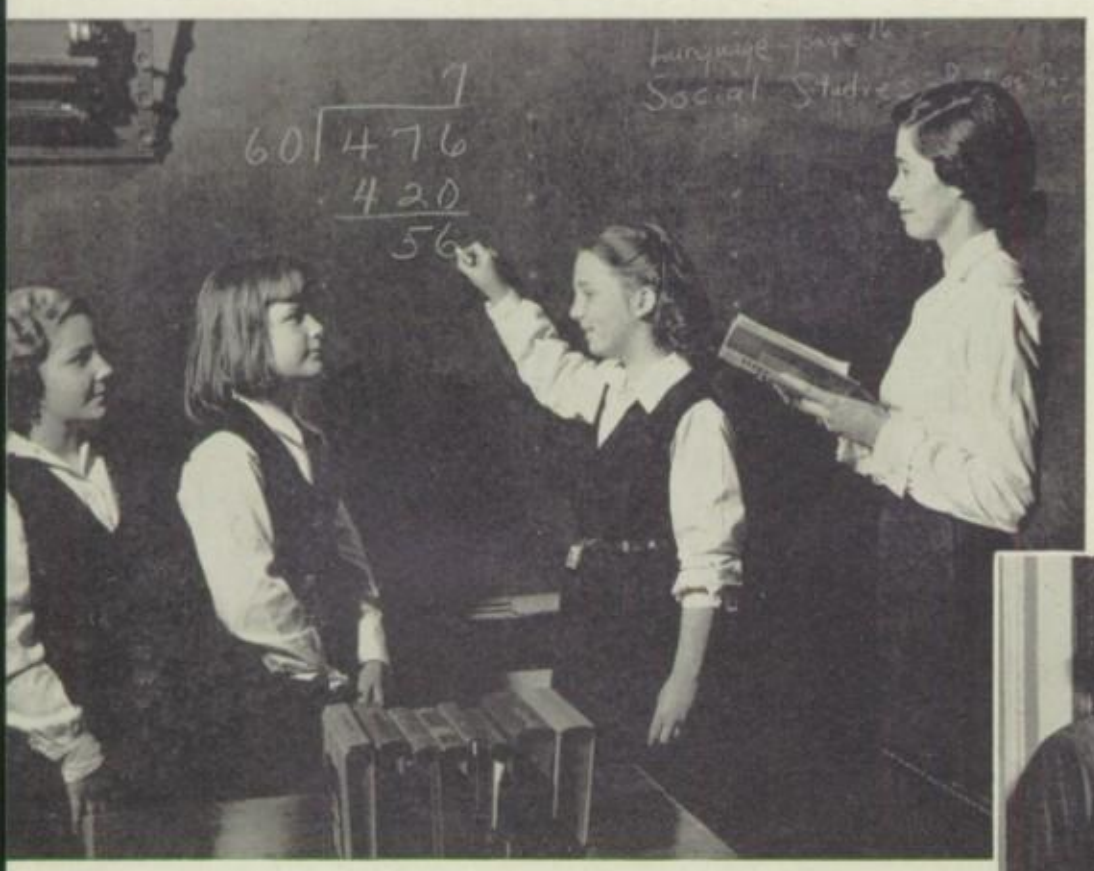
Mrs. Wood checks new book purchases with the library committee, Barbara Jenkins, Julia Cox, Carol Burch, and Judy Bowen.

The King's English is the subject for this discussion by Susan Wishard, Elisabeth Hammond, Julie Cain, Jill Pearson, and their teacher, Miss McCuistion.

Miss Haber locates some of the United States possessions for Sally Alexander, Ann Morrow, Mary McKibben, and Sue Eaglesfield, juniors in American history.

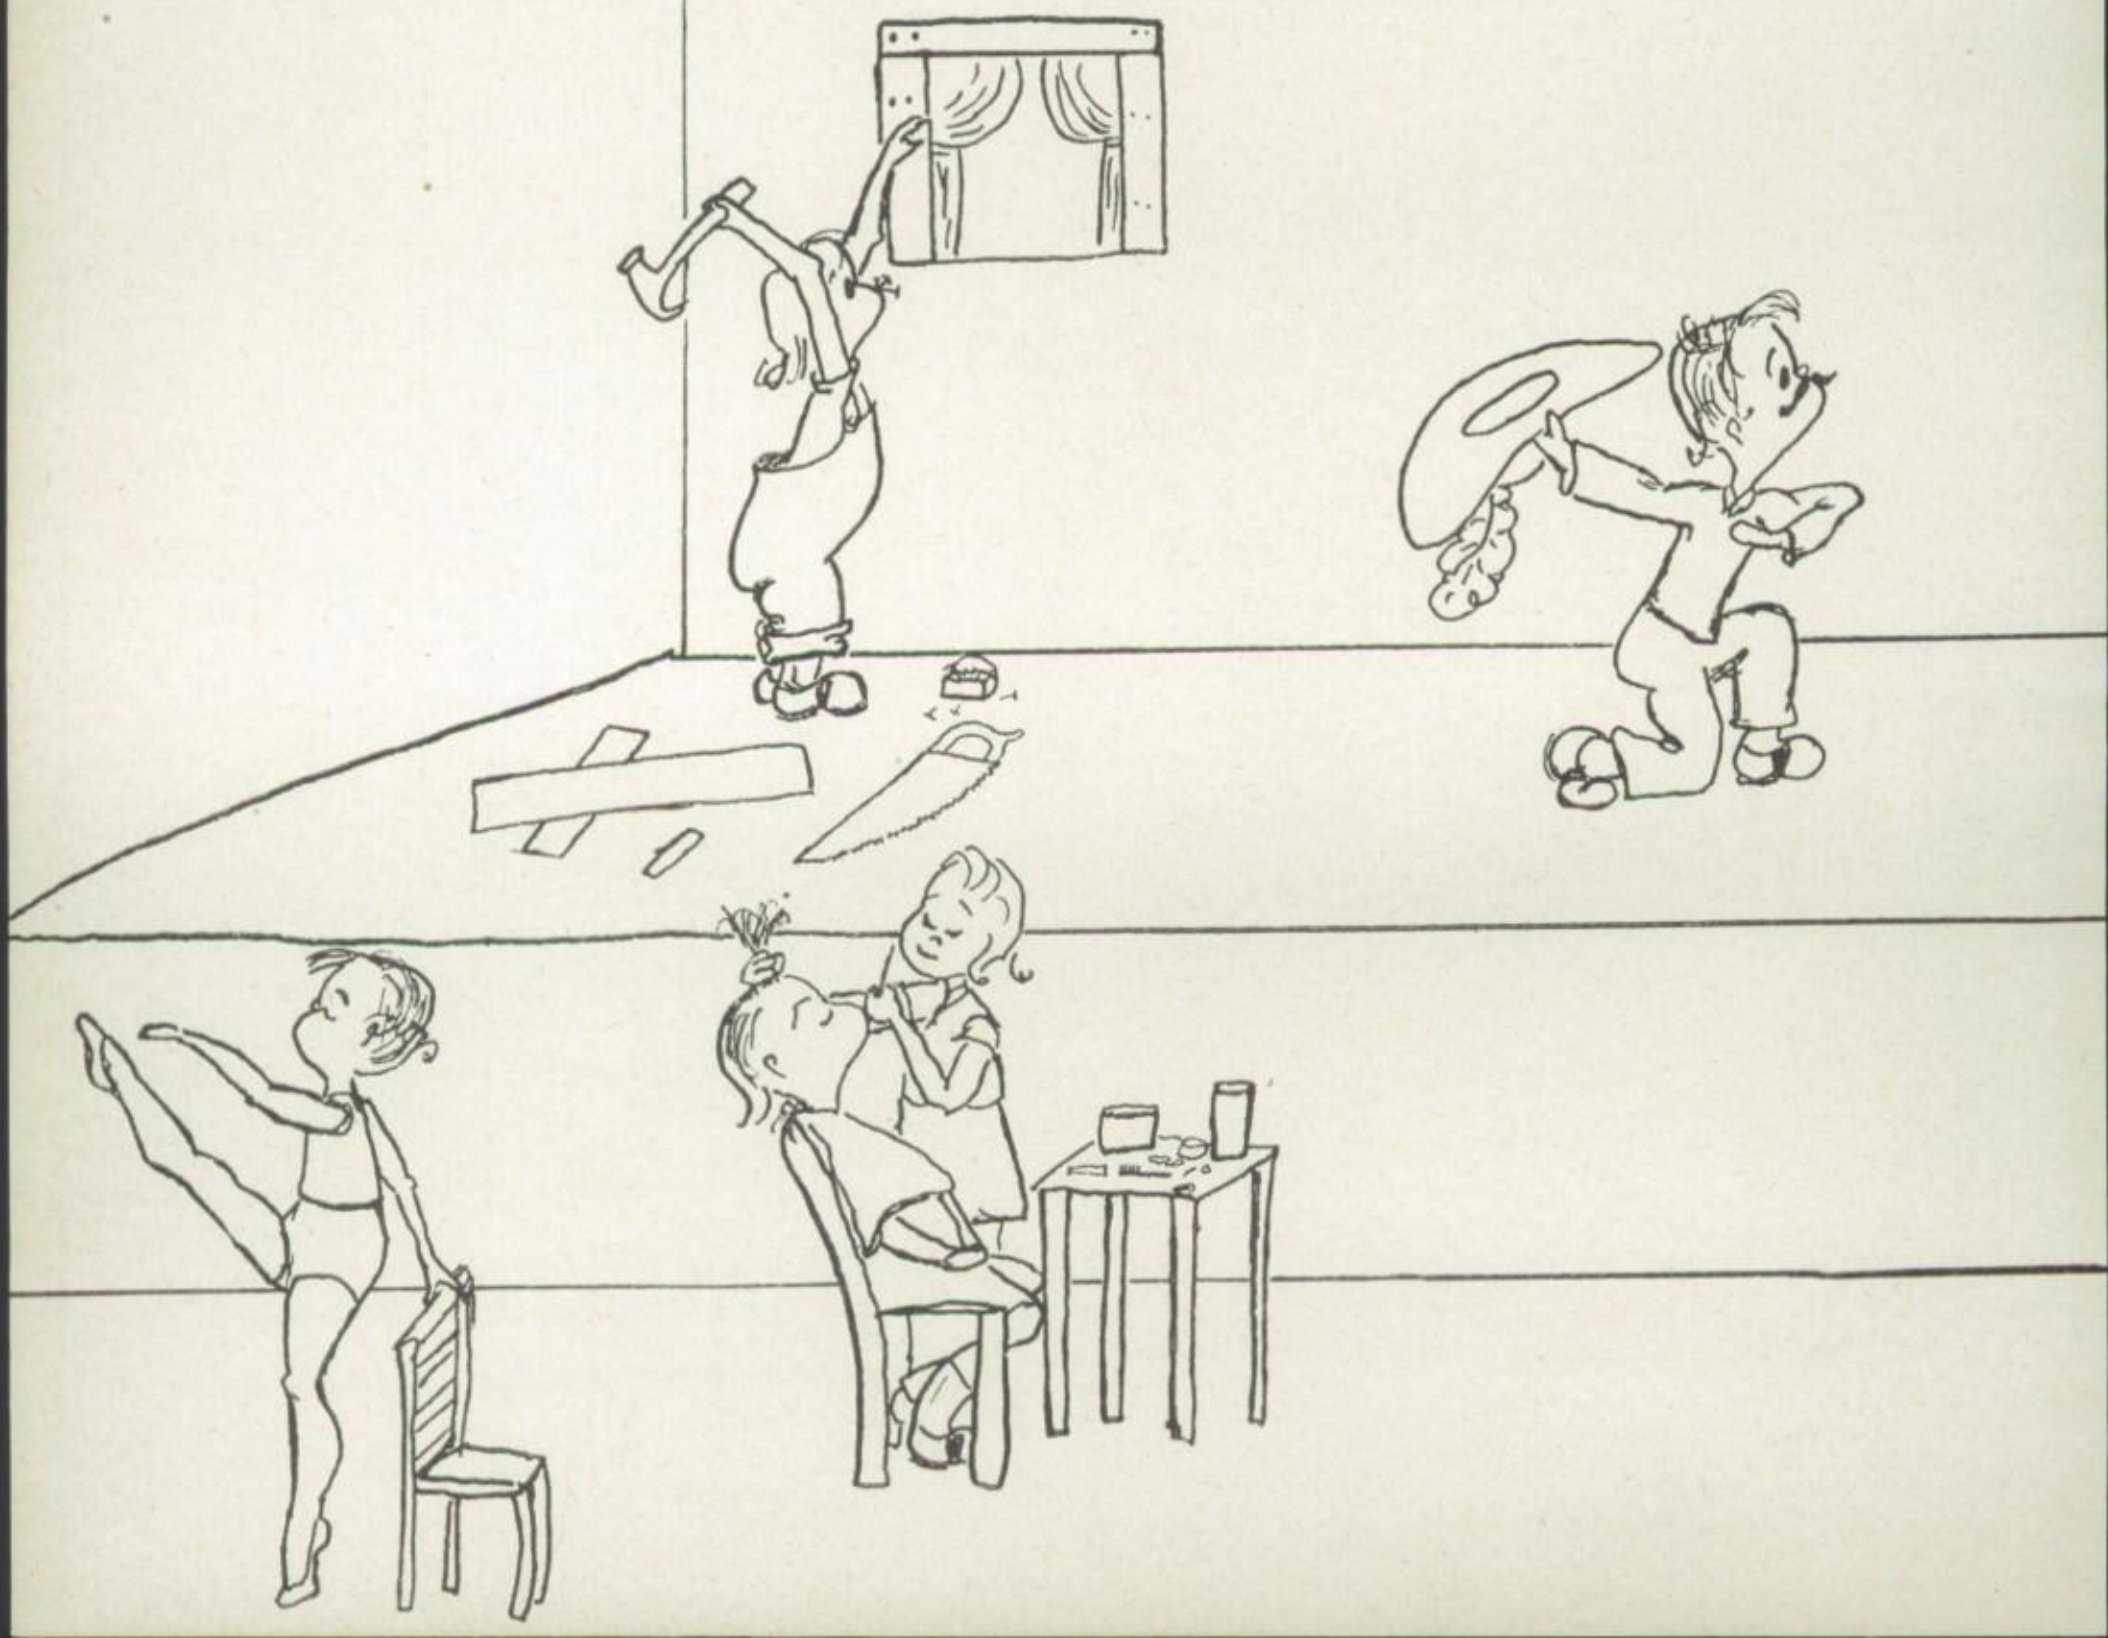
Education in Action

Proof of Boyle's law occupies Martha Stacy and Sarah White, while Miss Rood assists Marjorie Haas in the study of moments.

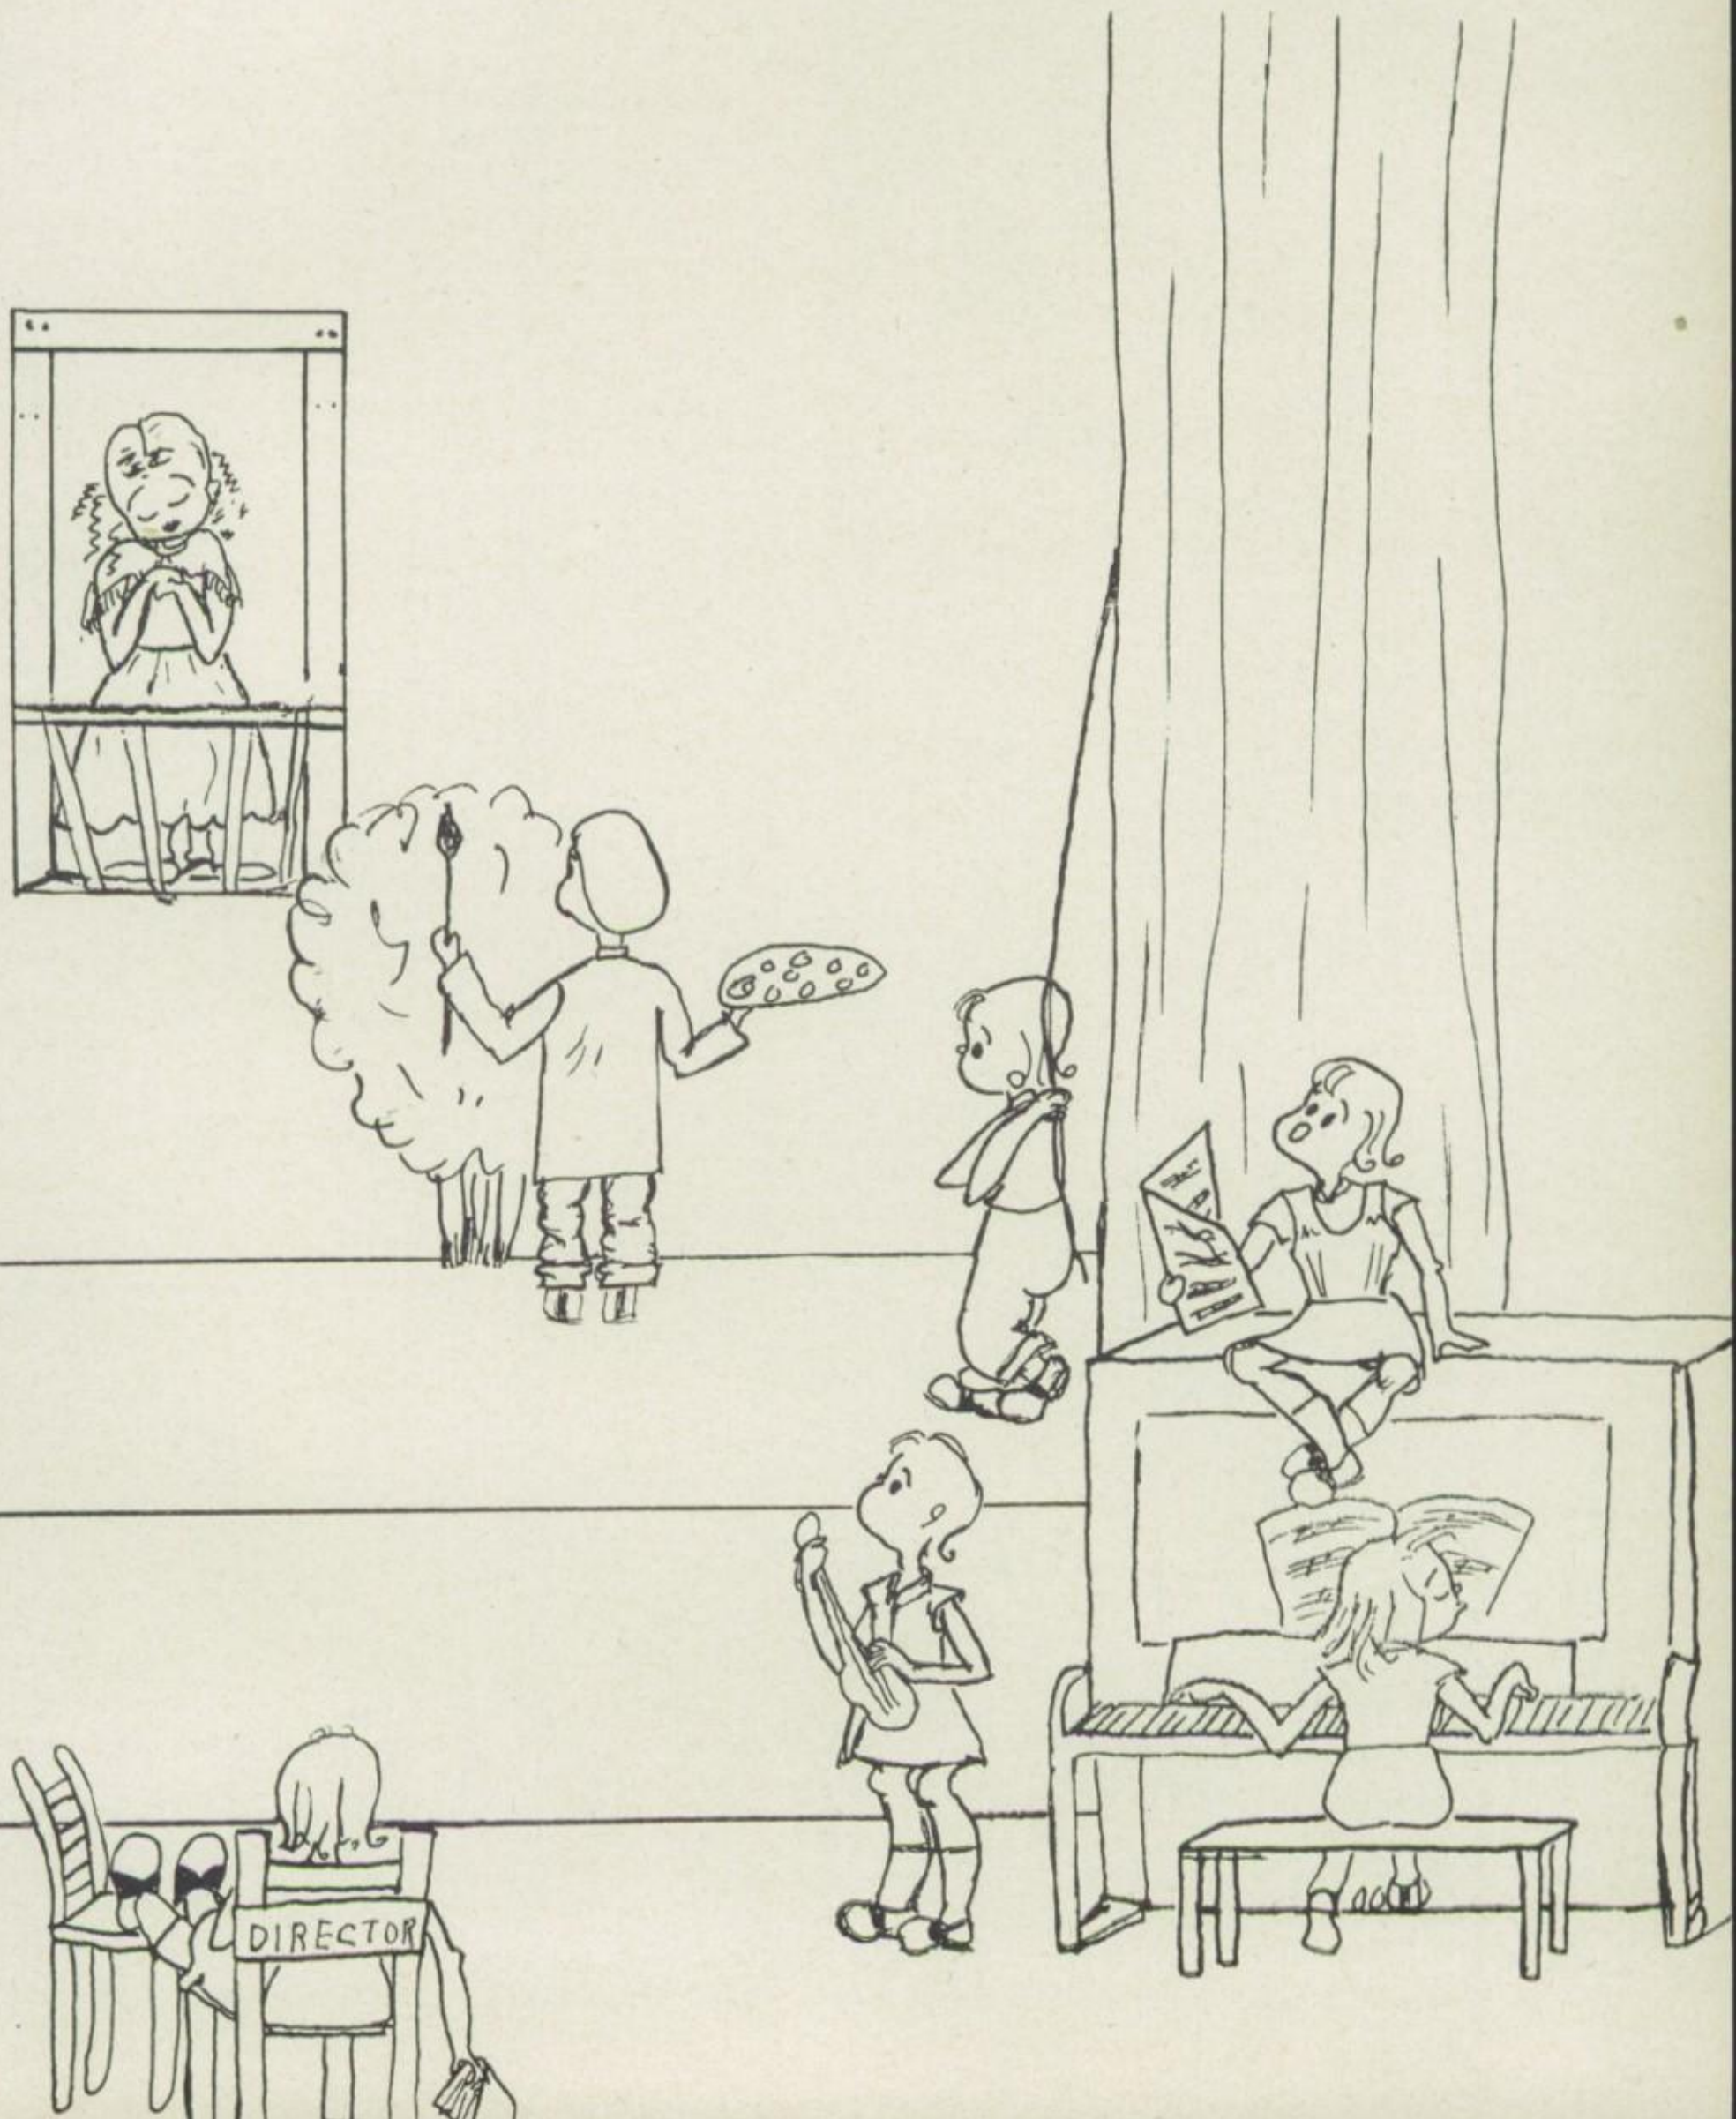


Long division is no problem for fifth graders Ruth Lilly, Nancy Ayres, and Margaret Allison, with Miss Elliott there to ask the right questions.

"Allons, enfants! Let's go to Paris," suggests Miss Sutton to Hildegarde Wemmer, Margot Lacy, Jane Holton, and Judy Howell, French IV students.



ACTIVITIES



Student Government

Seated—H. Wemmer, president.
Standing — B. Hall, vice-president; M. Haas, treasurer; M. Lacy, secretary.

The sound of the gavel on Thursday brings the high school to order to consider the business of the Student Government Association. The power which directs the government is the Student Council, consisting of twenty-one members. The Council tries to give guidance to the individual girl, to help in civic projects, and to act as a governing body for the students.

This year the Council's activities started with the annual Old Girl-New Girl party, where the girls were dressed to represent movie titles. At Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets for needy families were packed and distributed under the Council's supervision. The largest project of the year was the Tudor-Park carnival, the proceeds of which were used for charitable purposes. Tudor's share went to Janina Zadziewicz, a Polish refugee in France.

Row I—J. Holton, J. Howell, M. Stacy, M. Harrison, L. Barton.
Row II—M. McKibben, S. Alexander, S. White, P. Atkins, E. Post.
Row III—B. Moynahan, M. L. Miller, S. Wishard, J. Cox, M. Moseley.
Standing—Miss Rood, Miss Haber.

Row I—J. Pearson, M. L. Lynch, J. Cain, L. Miller, M. McKibben, P. Brown, D. Dunlap, A. Morrison.

Row II—B. Hall, N. Woods, P. Atkins, S. Eaglesfield, J. Holton, N. Rust, J. Cox.

Athletic Association

Standing—Miss Stonemetz and Miss Ross, sponsors; B. Moynahan, president. Seated—M. E. Rossin, secretary.

From hockey to modern dance, from swimming to baseball, the Athletic Association guides the entire upper school in all sports by promoting good sportsmanship and an interest in athletics. A. A. started the year off with splashing competition between the classes in a swimming meet. Then all responded to that familiar phrase, "Straighten up!" for it was the struggle between the Greens and Whites during posture week. After spring vacation everyone was busy writing songs for the annual song contest or engrossed in her old spellers in preparation for the Green and White spelling bee. Ending their full year, the Athletic Councilors relaxed at their annual picnic.

Row I—N. Woods, L. Sadlier, P. Brown, D. Dunlap, C. Haram, L. Barton.

Row II—S. Alexander, J. Ballard, B. Jenkins, N. Rust, J. Holton, A. Morrison, J. Cain, E. Hammond.

Row I—M. McKibben, L. Miller, B. Hall, N. Barnaby, A. Morrow, M. Lurie.

Row II—E. Post, A. Russel, C. Hine, M. L. Lynch, P. Childs, B. Brown, S. Wishard, J. Alig.

Seated—Miss McCullough, sponsor; M. Moseley, editor.

Standing—S. White, assistant editor; M. Stacy, business manager; C. Van Reekum, treasurer.

Literary Masters

From mid-September to December, when THE TUDOR CROWN finally appeared in its blue and silver cover, the staff and sponsor devoted all spare moments to preparing the magazine for the printer. Since last year's issue won first place in both the Columbia and the National Scholastic Press association contests, the 1952 staff had a high goal to achieve.

Judges of the cover contest gave equal honors to Nancy Barnaby and Julia Cox, choosing Nancy's design for the cover and Julia's for the flyleaf. An innovation was the revived TUDOR HERALD, in which school news and club notes were neatly packaged in the middle of the book by Ann Morrow and her reporters.

The CROWN bank account, always on the slender side, was fed by profits from Friday food sales, an autograph sheet, generous patrons, and advertisers.

Secret plans, the dedication, the Will and Prophecy, and tons of work for the seniors — all these things make the TUDOR CHRONICLE what it is. For months before the CHRONICLE was ready for the press, the seniors worked long hours writing, typing, and taking pictures. Along business lines, they sold the usual cookies and sandwiches, T. H. elephants, pins, and compacts to raise money for the publication.

Each senior class desires its CHRONICLE to be the best ever, and the Class of 1953 is no exception. It hopes that its yearbook ranks at the top with its smart cover, unusual art work, and scores of pictures. Although the class is small, it worked hard to bring out this year's CHRONICLE in hope that it will convey a lasting impression of the year 1952-53.

Standing — M. Moseley, assistant editor; Miss McCuistion, sponsor; M. Harrison, treasurer.

Seated—J. Cox, J. Holton, M. Haas, J. Howell.

Standing—M. Lacey, H. Wemmer, N. Woods, B. Moynahan.

The Masquers began a busy season by judging the exceptionally good October tryouts, through which several new members were admitted to the club. A solemn candlelight initiation constituted the first official meeting. Later meetings included such high lights as an enlightening talk by Frederick "Dusty" Rhodes, the technical director of the Civic Theatre, and an entertaining movie entitled "Four Ways of Drama" which displayed the different presentations which would be necessary to adapt the same play to radio, TV, the movies, or the stage. An informal movie discussion with Mr. William Carroll, treasurer of Allied Theater Owners Association, and a field trip to the Civic Theatre also proved quite interesting. The eventful year was brought to a climax by the traditional dinner party in May.

Seated—J. Cox, treasurer; L. Miller, secretary.

Standing—Miss Frazier, sponsor; J. Holton, president; M. Lurie, vice-president.

Thespians in the Making

Row I—M. Nessler, M. Derry, M. Stacy, M. McKibben, B. Hall, D. Dunlap, J. Alig.

Row II—E. Post, M. L. Lynch, B. Jenkins, A. Morrow, S. Eaglesfield, P. Atkins, C. Haram, S. Alexander.

Row III—M. Harrison, B. Moynahan, J. Howell, M. E. Rossin, C. Van Reekum, L. Barton, H. Wemmer, P. Brown, A. Morrison, J. Bowen, S. White.

Row I—M. Harrison, M. Stacy, P. Childs, J. Cain, L. Sadlier, A. Russel.

Row II—P. Brown, A. Morrow, B. Hall, B. Hill, S. Aikins, K. Kraning.

Row III—S. White, M. L. Miller, J. Saunders, C. Van Reekum, M. E. Rossin, B. Moynahan, J. Howell, M. Haas, M. Lacy, B. Brown, A. Morrison.

Seated—S. Alexander, president.

Standing—Miss Brodsky, sponsor; L. Miller, vice-president; M. McKibben, treasurer.

Master Musicians

Two unusual events marked Prelude Club's calendar this year. In January Mrs. Dorothy Merrill Ritter and Mrs. Kathryn Turney Garten as guest artists presented a delightful Chopin program. Ending the year's activities was the Park-Tudor Music Festival, May 16, the first of its kind in the history of the two schools.

The fall meetings followed the traditional pattern with a piano recital by the new sponsor, Miss Brodsky, the officers' program, and the impressive Southern Christmas. From Beethoven to "pop," Prelude had something for every taste.

Miss Horsfall, sponsor; C. Van Reekum, vice-president; M. L. Lynch, secretary-treasurer; M. Harrison, president.

Artists at Work

Never let it be said that Artisans Club has been idle! They started the busy year with a Halloween party at the home of Martha Harrison. Field trips have been many and varied. Among these were an excursion to the Florentine exhibit at the John Herron Art Institute and a visit to Mrs. Marc Lurie's home for inside information on mobiles. The Wm. H. Block art exhibit was another major attraction. The outstanding event of the year was a trip to Cincinnati to see the Art Museum, the Taft home, and the Terrace Plaza Hotel.

Life includes hard labor as well as travel for the Artisans. In between jaunts they provided the décor for the Workshop production—a masterly representation of the Mississippi River. The year came to a successful close with the club's annual picnic.

Row I—J. Ballard, J. Pearson, M. Flowers, M. Derry, J. Cox.

Row II—L. Sadlier, L. Barton, L. Spencer, M. Nessler, C. Van Reekum, J. Howell, M. Moseley, H. Wemmer, S. White, N. Rust.

Seated—N. Woods, M. McKibben, M. E. Rossin, L. Miller, P. Childs, A. Morrow.
Standing—P. Brown, J. Alig, N. Rust, C. Hine, M. Stacy, C. Haram, M. Lacy, Miss Ross, sponsor; B. Hall, S. Eaglesfield, S. Alexander, P. Atkins, M. L. Miller, E. Post, J. Ballard.

Modern Terpsichoreans

Old Man River flowed right along through Workshop's production, "Lanterns on the Levee," February 20 and 21. An Indian powwow, a bayou festival, and the fence-painting scene from Mark Twain's "Tom Sawyer" were some of the dances done to interpret life along the Mississippi.

This production was the grand climax of a season which started with tryouts in October. As an assembly program, November 17, Workshop gave a dance autobiography, which included take-offs on its social meetings and rehearsals.

An early spring attraction was the trip to Bloomington to see the Dudley, Maslow, and Bales Modern Dance Company.

Officers this year were Patsy Atkins, president; Priscilla Brown, vice-president; Ann Morrow, secretary; and Sue Eaglesfield, treasurer. Miss Ross is sponsor.

Kneeling—J. Ballard.
Standing—S. Alexander, P. Brown.

A Bit of Paris

The "petit enfant" of the Tudor clubs is Les Parisiennes, launched last year by the present sophomore class. Its first formal meeting was an inspiring candlelight initiation held in the residence living room. Suzanne Brown, as the club's first president, conferred membership upon eight new pledges.

The meetings have been many and varied. The first "réunion," held at Michaela Derry's, was a stimulating discussion on Paris and French architecture by Mr. Richard Zimmer, a local architect. His talk was beautifully illustrated with colored slides.

Another meeting, which took place at the home of Marcia Lurie, consisted of a Frenchified game, Truth or Consequences. Questions were asked which covered many phases of French history and civilization. For failure to answer correctly members were punished by having to perform consequences in French. Some had to prepare skits, charades, and apache dances which were later performed at meetings.

Seated — A. Morrison, secretary; S. Brown, president.

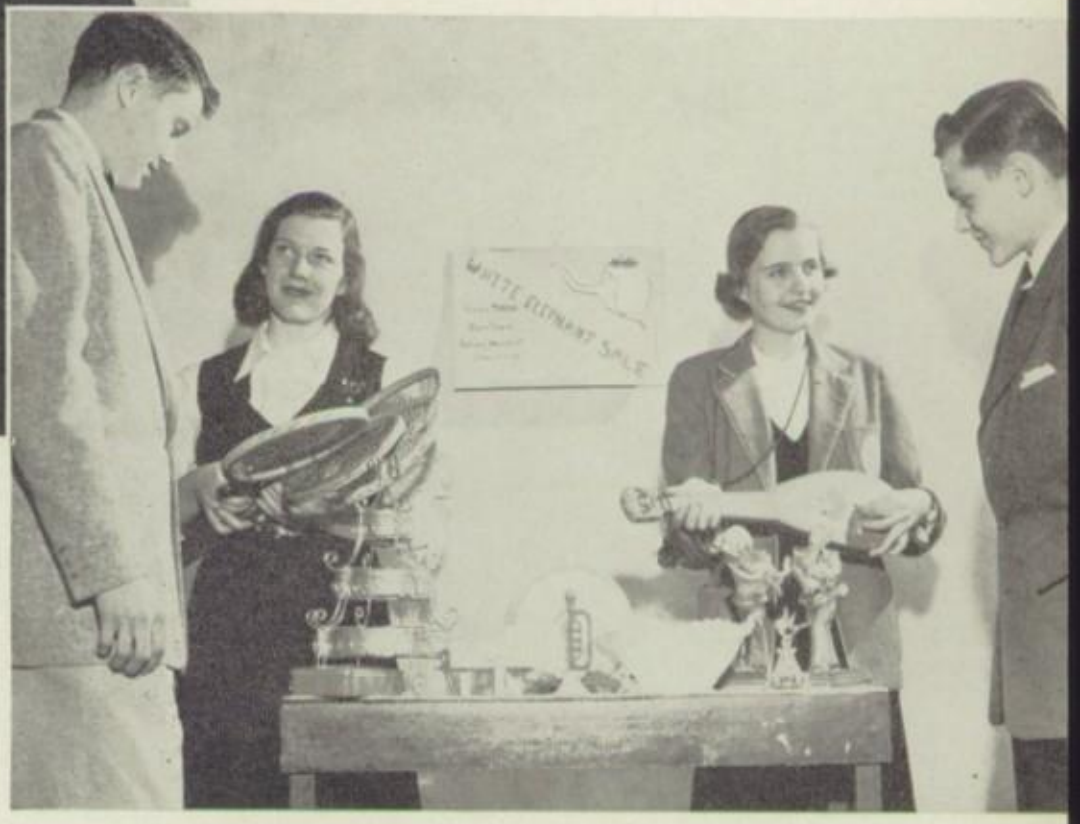
Standing — J. Cox, vice-president; S. White, treasurer; Mlle. Moscherosch and Miss Sutton, sponsors.

Row I—M. Lacy, M. Nessler, H. Wemmer.
Row II—L. Spencer, M. L. Lynch, M. Lurie, M. Derry, J. Howell, E. Hammond, S. Wishard, A. Russel. Standing—J. Alig.

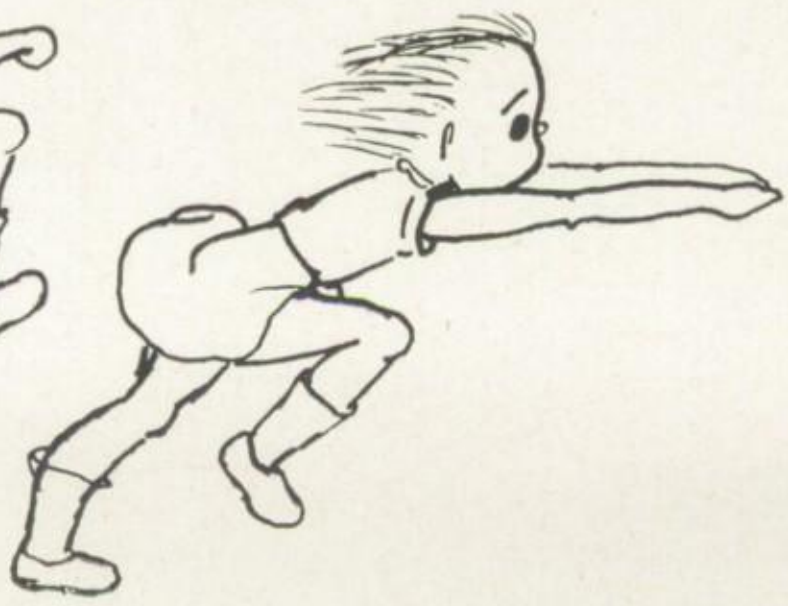
Tudorites in the News

Tudor's contestants in the "Quiz 'Em on the Air" program smile after defeating the team from Manual Training High School. With Miss Kathryn Pickett of THE INDIANAPOLIS STAR (center), they are: Martha Stacy, Sarah White, Mary Lou Lynch, and Michaela Derry.

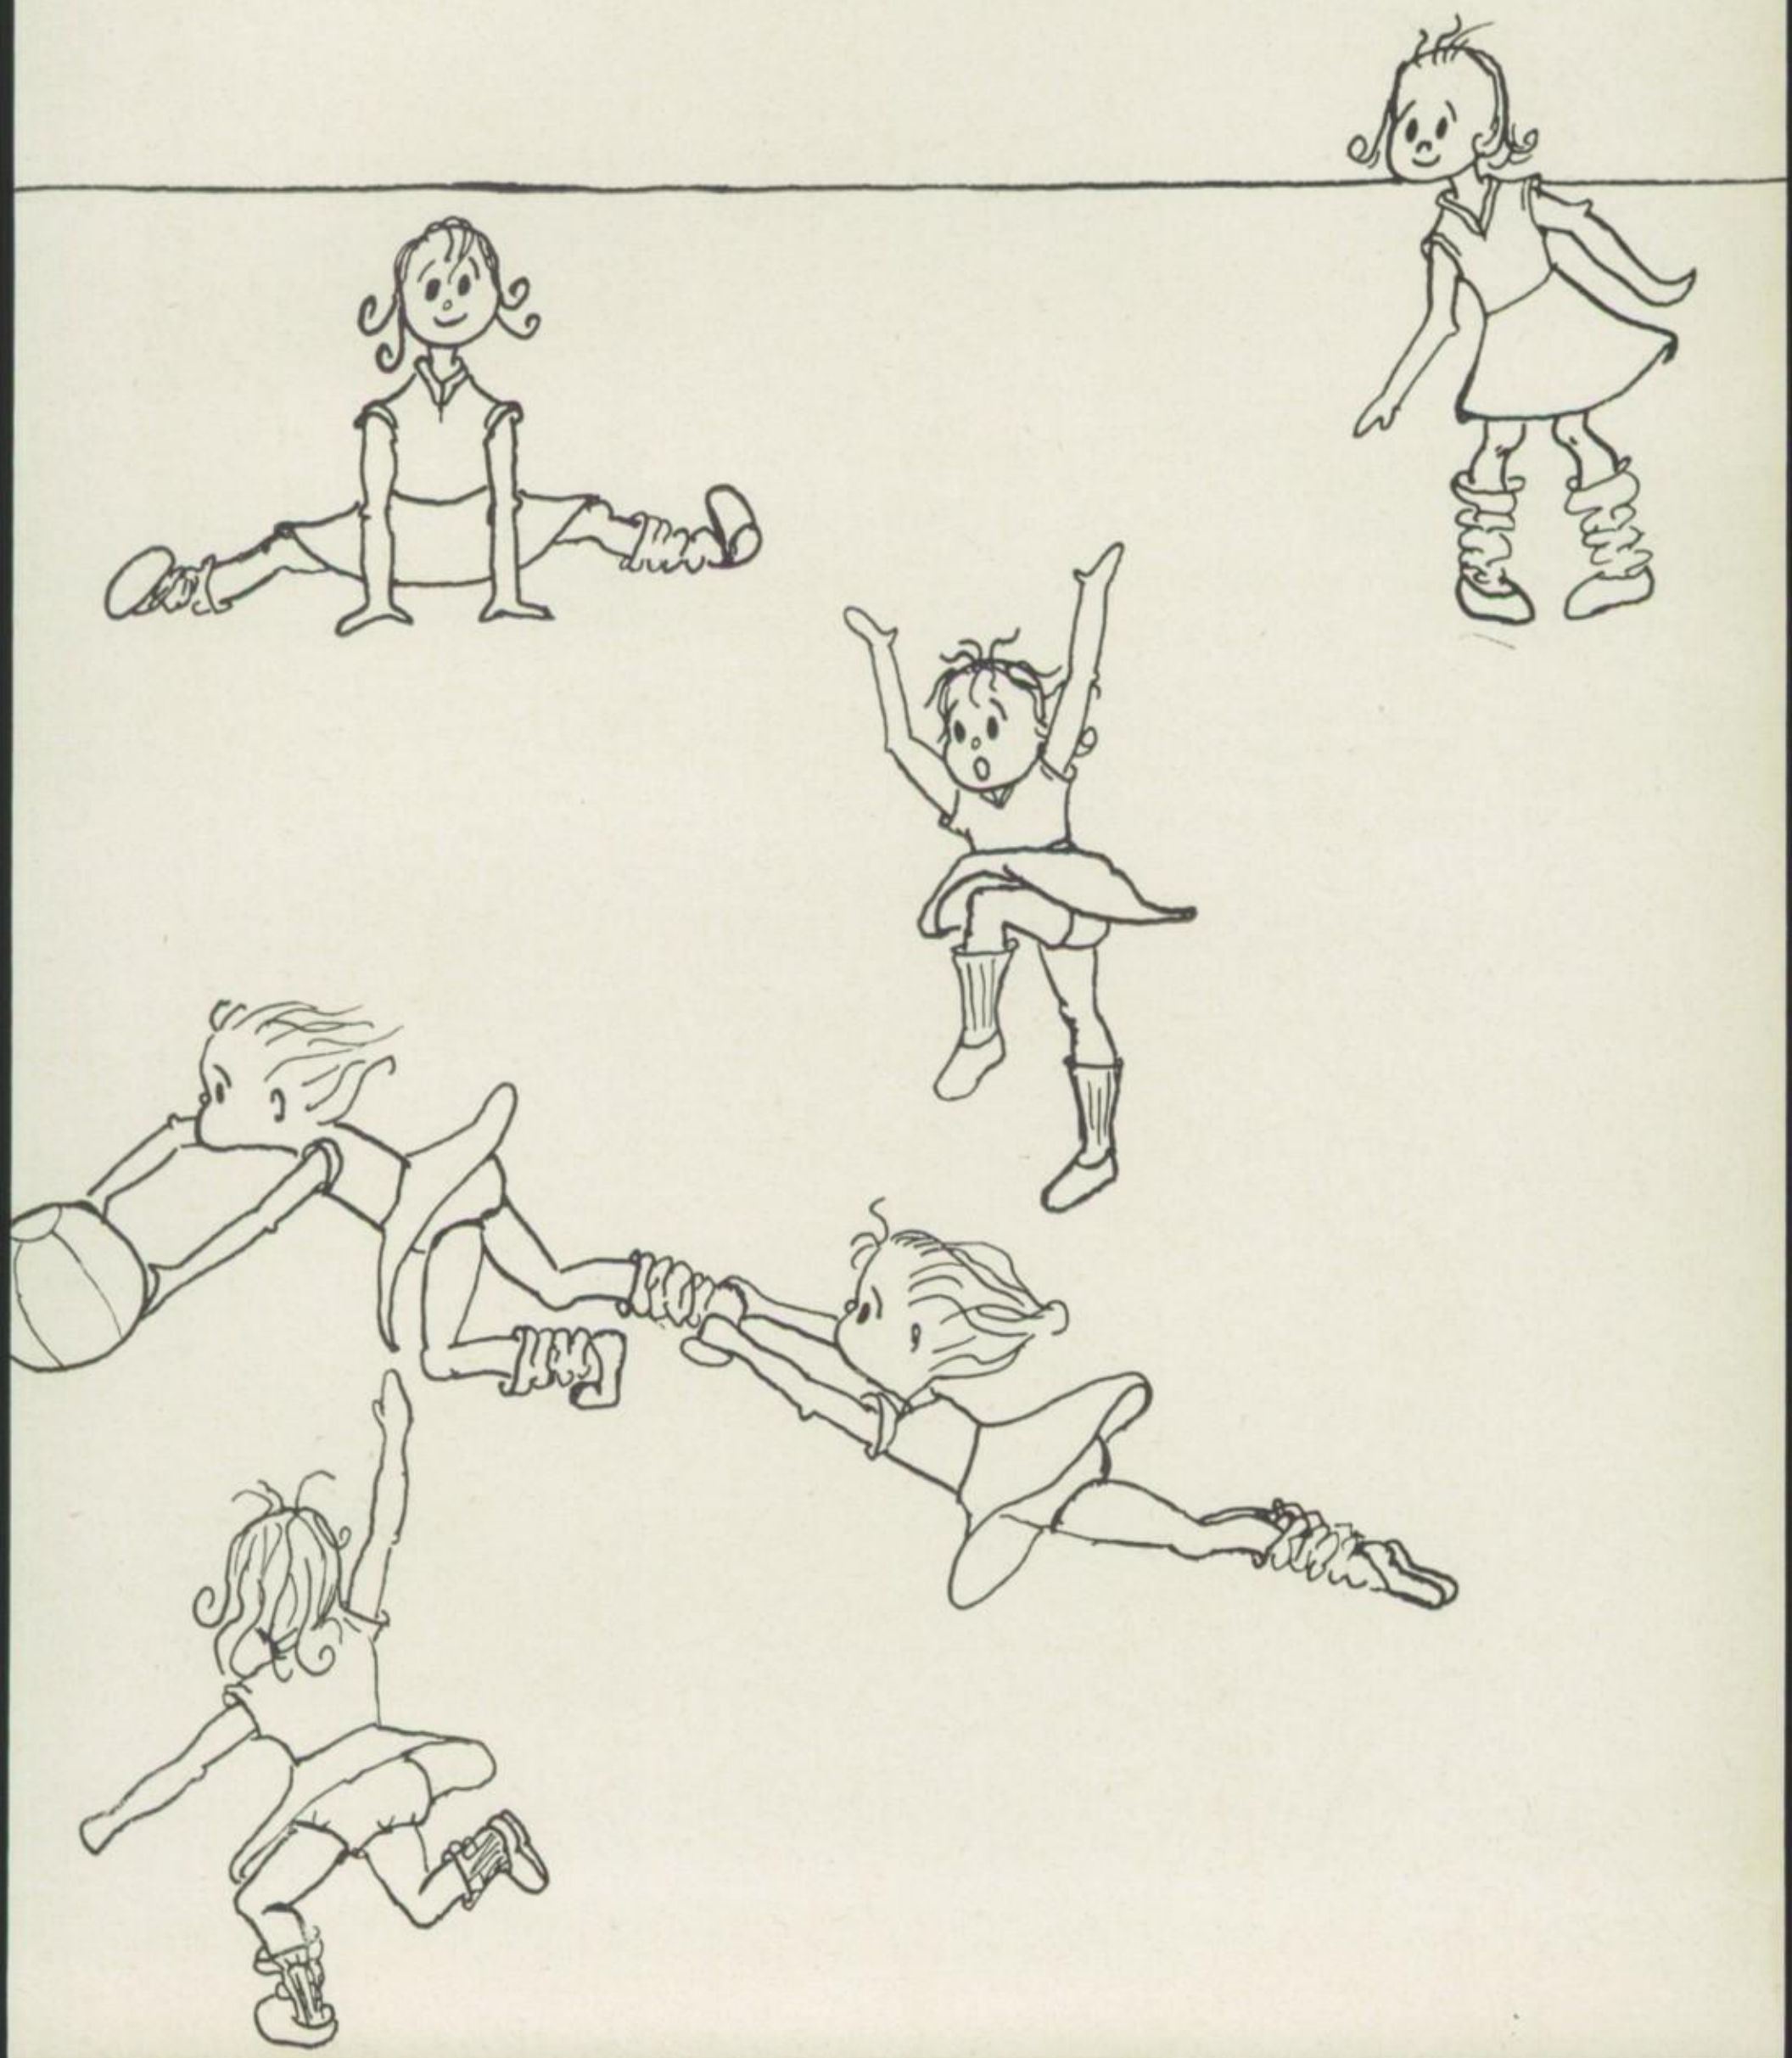
The things some people keep in their attics! Ralph Walrod and Rick Shahovskoy seem tough customers to saleslades Hildegarde Wemmer and Ann Morrow, but the White Elephant Sale at the Park-Tudor Carnival grossed more than any other booth.

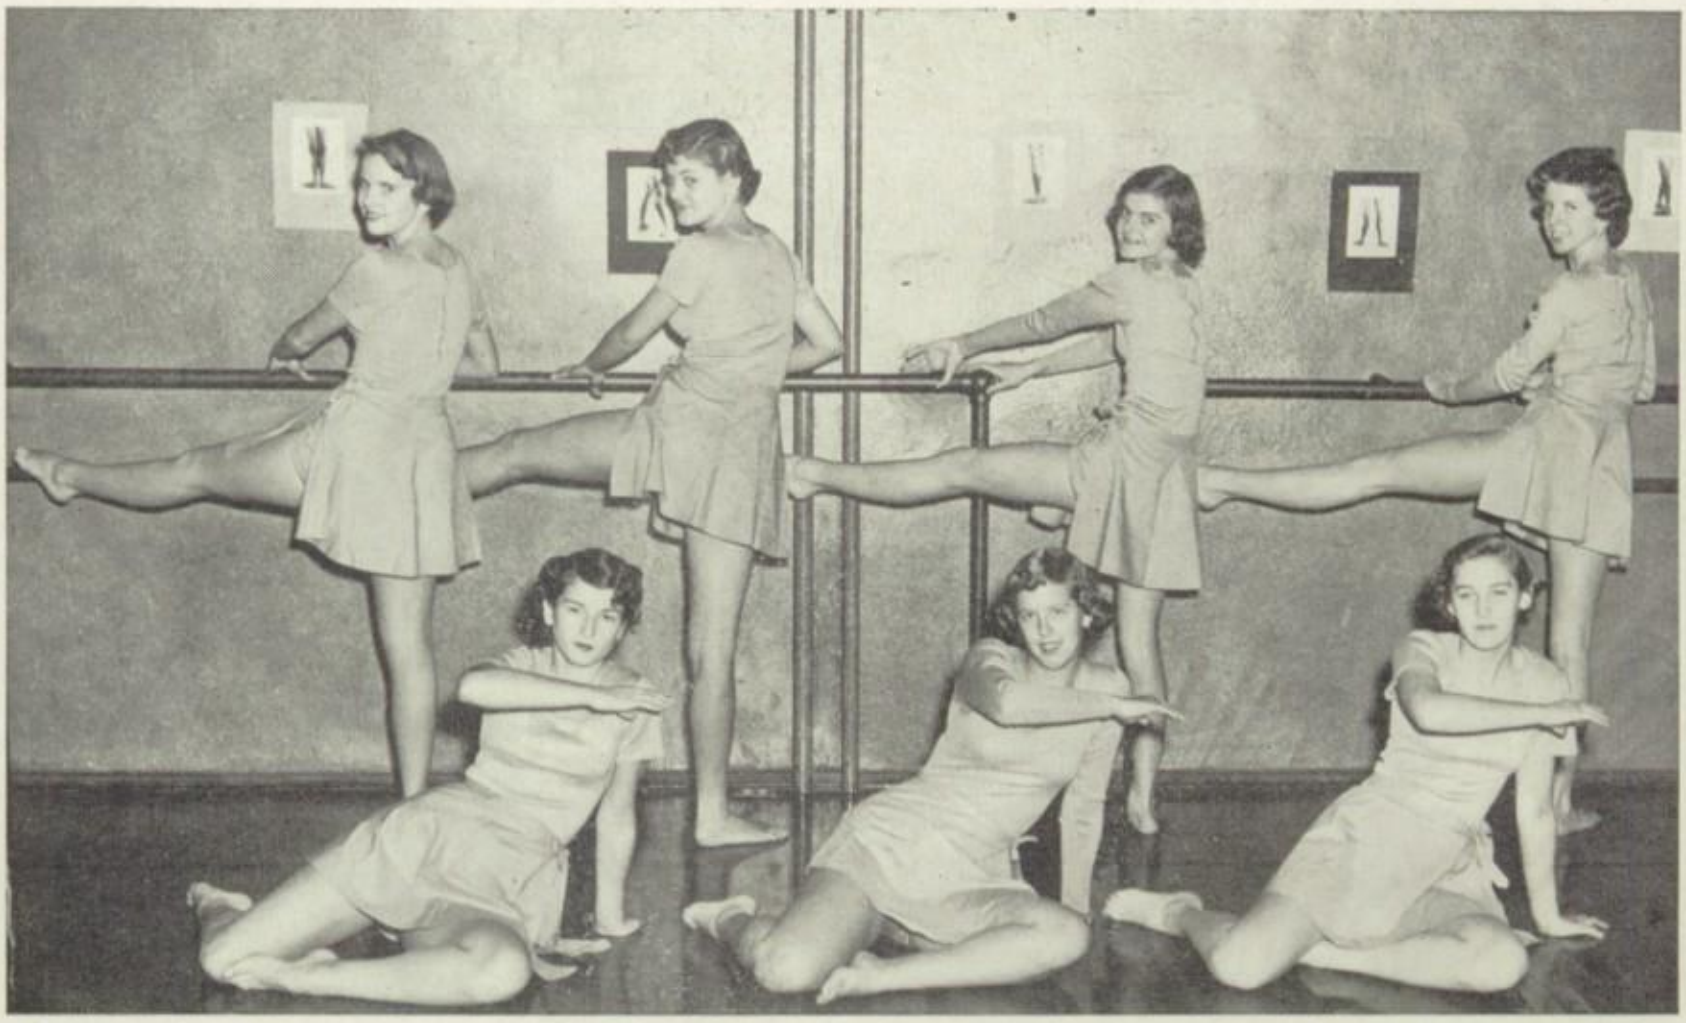


Ann Morrow, Patsy Atkins, and Sue Eaglesfield are hailing the approaching Robert E. Lee in Workshop's presentation of "Lanterns on the Levee."



SPORTS





Working on a floor technique are Cynthia Laram, Priscilla Brown, and Nancy Rust, while Margaret Lie Miller, Cheryl Hine, Peggy Childs, and Jane Alig work out at the barre.

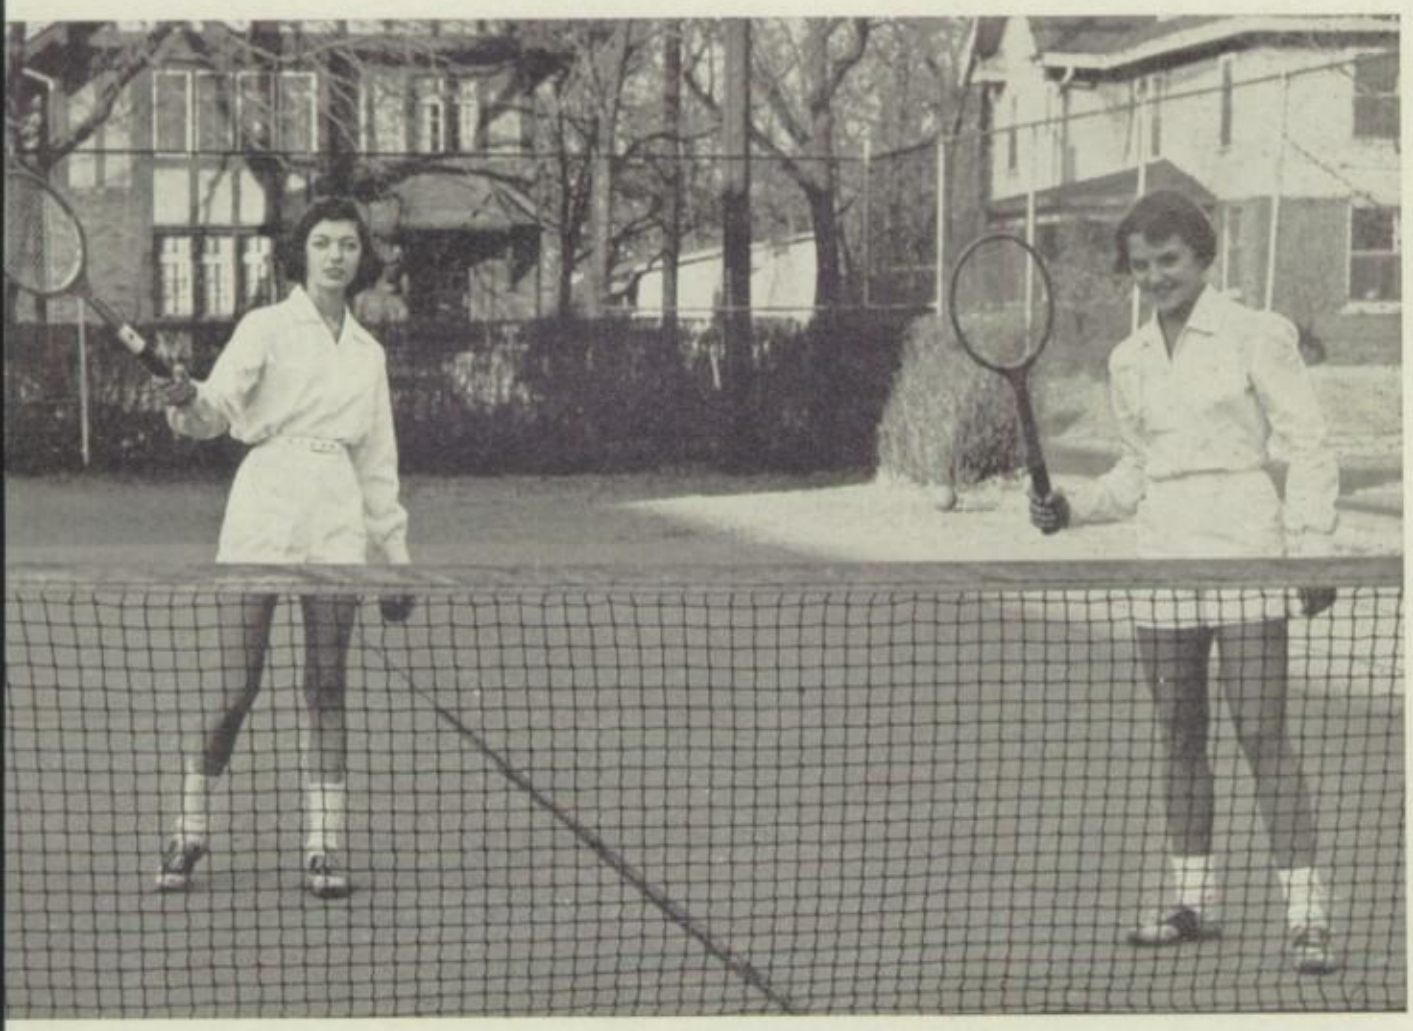
Sports in the Tudor Limelight

Sports at Tudor are one of the most important phases of student activity. A wide variety is offered, and everyone participates.

Fall found Tudor girls on the hockey field, on the tennis court, or in the swimming pool. After much eager competition in the class tennis doubles, Sue Eaglesfield and Bettie Hall defeated their sophomore rivals, Priscilla Brown and Anne Russel. The sophomores gained points for the class cup as they won the fall swimming meet for the second consecutive year. Ann Morrison and Linda Barton were high point scorers.

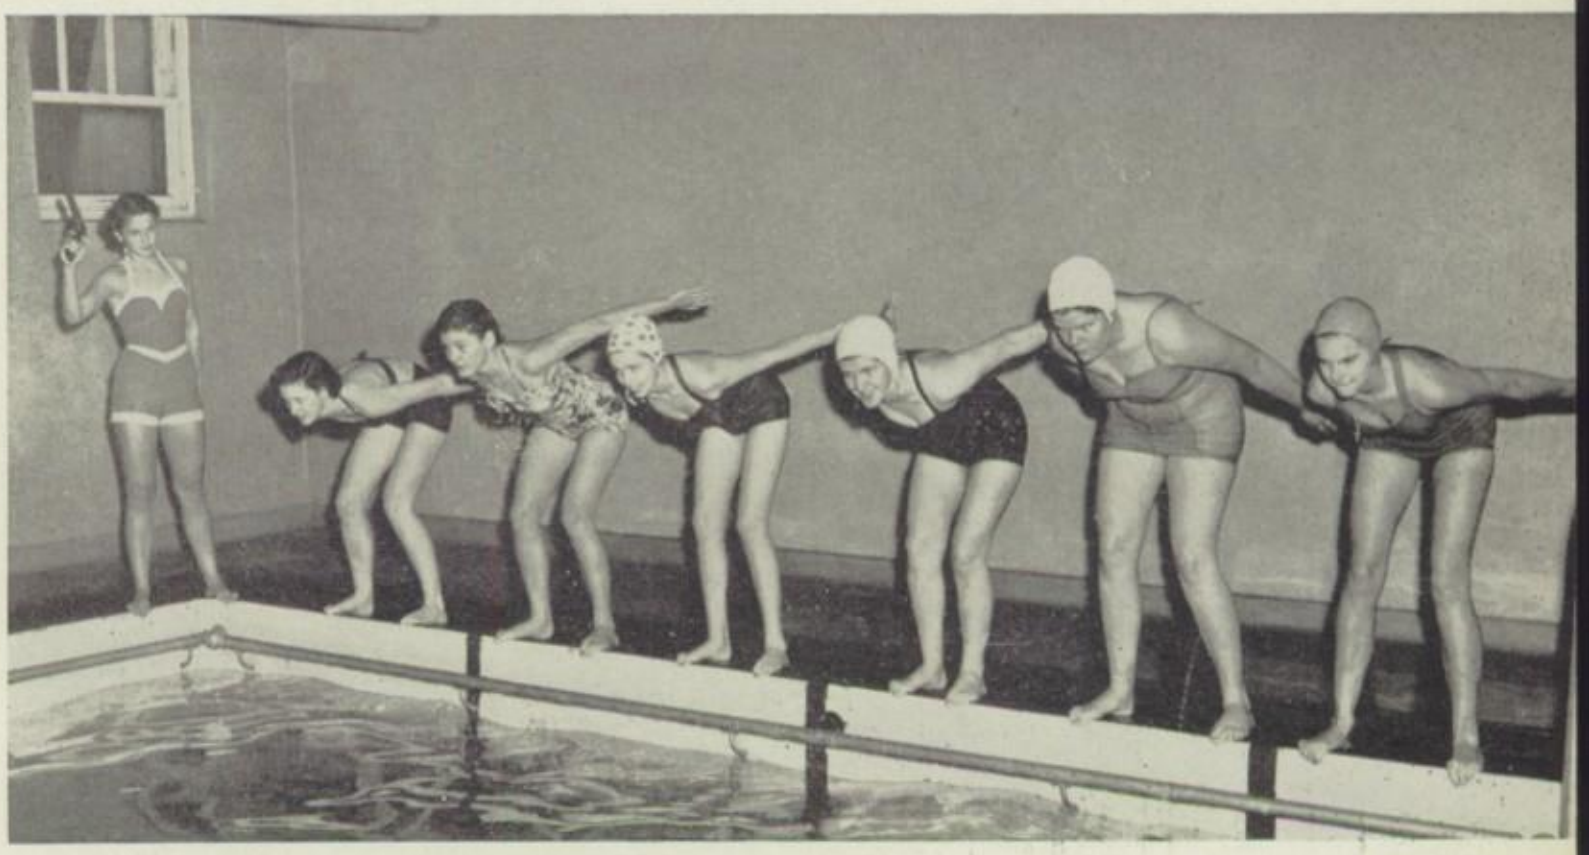
In winter sports, basketball took the spotlight, with badminton, ping-pong, and modern dance filling out the schedule. In ping-pong Green and White doubles, the Green players, Patsy Atkins and Barbara Jenkins, helped their cause by defeating Margot Lacy and Judy Howell, their White opponents. The class doubles in badminton found the seniors, Jane Holton and Judy Howell, defeating the sophomore players, 15-8 and 15-3.

In the spring Tudorites again took to the outdoors as softball, tennis, and swimming completed the year's sports activities.



Anne Russel and Ann Morrison await the return of Anne's serve.

"Take your mark!" cries Cynthia Haram as Sue Eaglesfield, Cheryl Hine, Beth Hill, Sue Ann Aikins, Cathy Van Reekum, and Marea McGrath prepare to take a plunge.



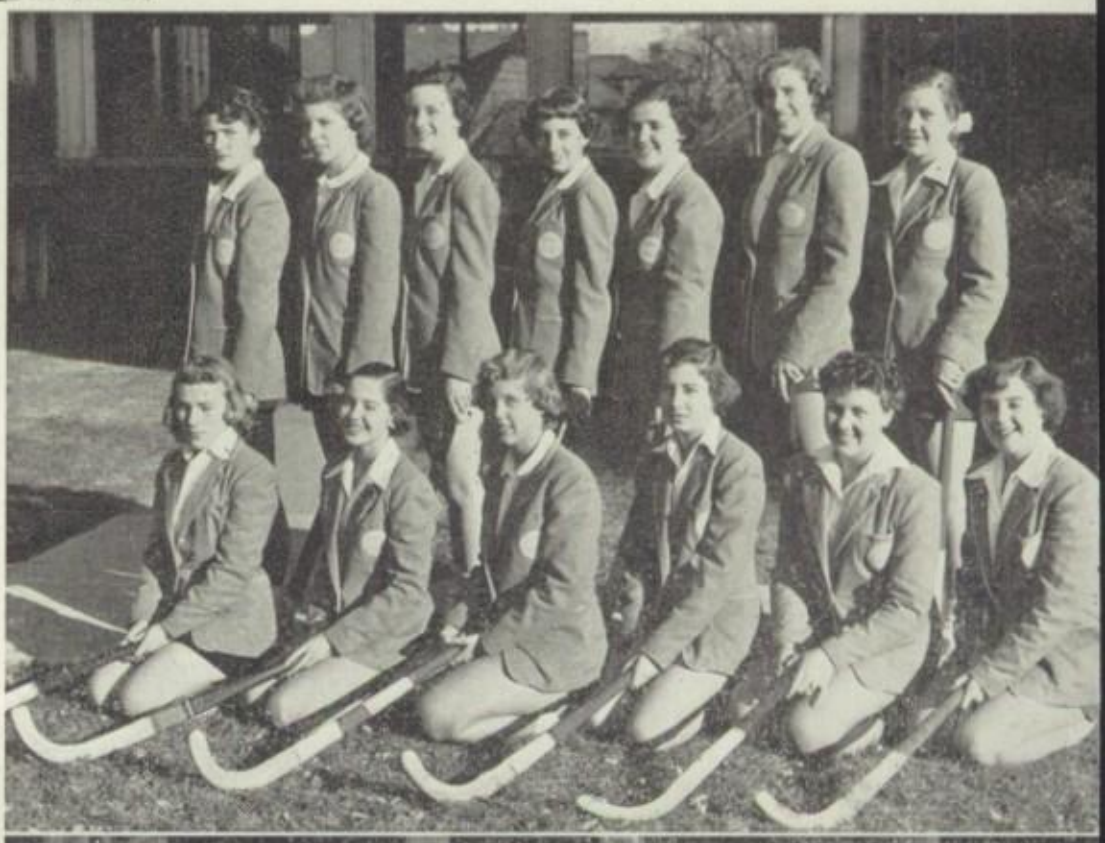
Hazardous Hockey

The familiar crack of wood against wood resounds from the field in Riverside Park as the Tudor girls, with sticks and goalie pads, invade the field. Almost every Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon one could see girls clad in anything from Bermuda shorts to sweat pants eagerly participating in Tudor's most popular fall sport. When game time rolled around, the juniors proved their superiority as they forged ahead to defeat the seniors and freshmen in spirited games, winning by the score of 2-0 each time, and tying the sophomores, 1-1. The class games ended with the juniors gaining victory and the most points toward the class cup.

VARSITY

Row I—S. Alexander, L. Miller, P. Brown, J. Cox, J. Ballard, M. McKibben.

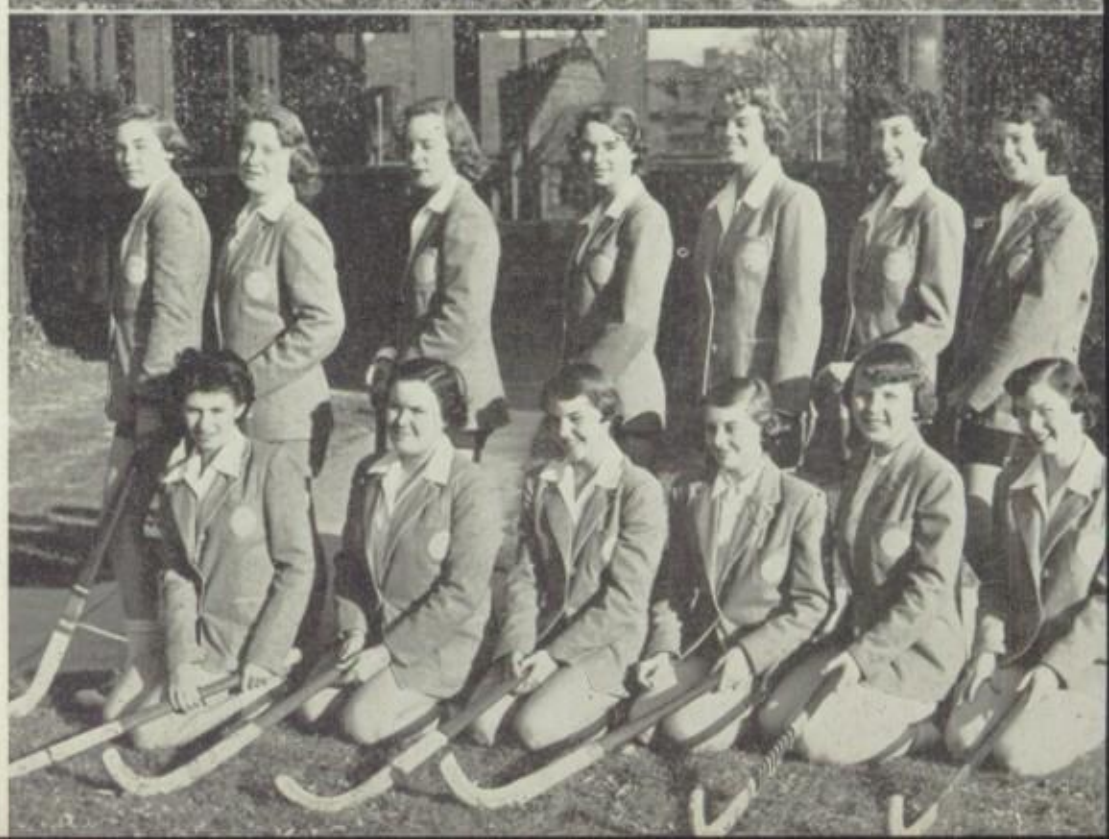
Row II—A. Morrison, M. Lacy, S. White, P. Atkins, S. Eaglesfield, A. Macomber, B. Moynahan, J. Howell.



GREENS

Row I—B. Hall, S. Alexander, P. Brown, J. Bowen, J. Cox, K. Kraning.

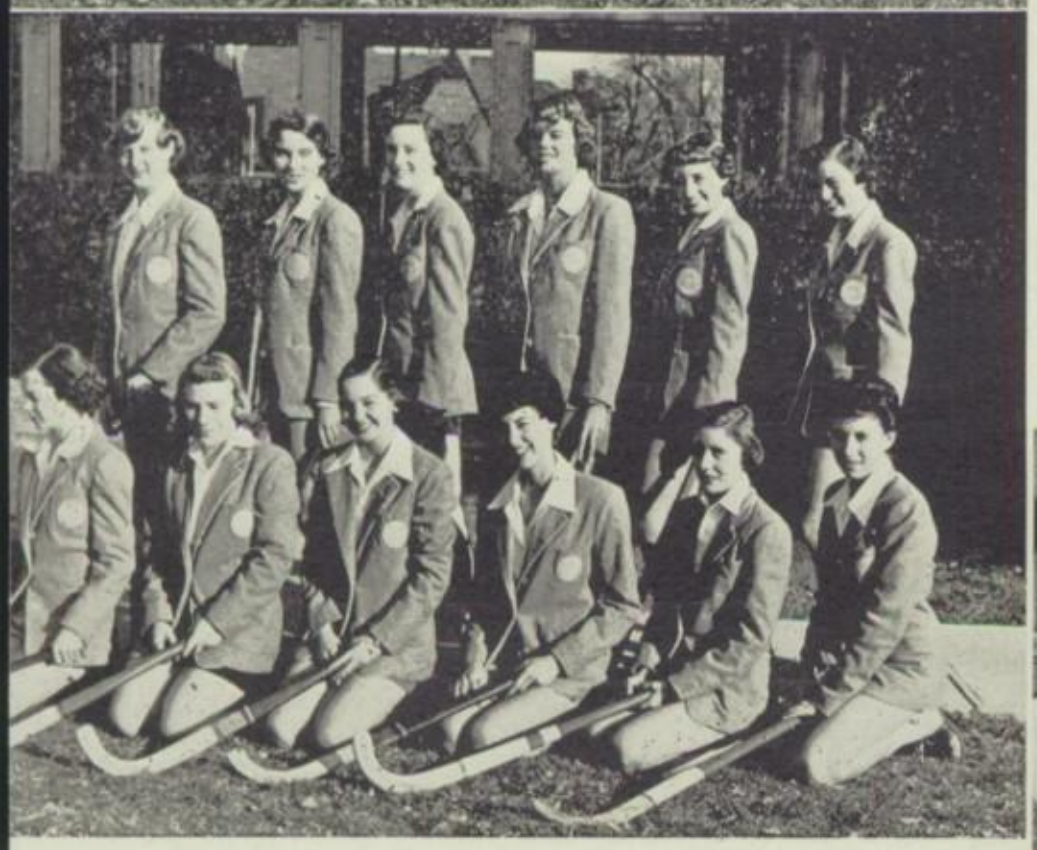
Row II—C. Haram, J. Alig, S. Eaglesfield, J. Ballard, S. Aikins, B. Moynahan, H. Wemmer.



WHITES

Row I—M. McKibben, S. White, A. Morrison, D. Dunlap, M. L. Lynch, N. Barnaby.

Row II—N. Rust, M. Lacy, J. Holton, P. Atkins, A. Macomber, M. E. Rossin, J. Howell.



After the conclusion of the class games, everyone's interest turned to the Green and White conflict. In the first of the series the Greens gained the victory of 1-0 in a hard-fought game. The next encounter resulted in a scoreless tie. In the last and deciding game the equally matched teams again fought to a tie; this time the score was 1-1. Thus the Greens gained the much-sought points.

A varsity team was chosen to take part in a hockey play-day at Louisville Collegiate School in Louisville. Playing Hillsdale School of Cincinnati and Kentucky Home of Louisville, the varsity squad was defeated, 2-0 and 3-0.

SENIORS

Row I—N. Woods, M. Stacy, J. Cox, J. Holton, M. Haas .

Row II—M. Lacy, M. Moseley, M. Harrison, S. White, H. Wemmer, J. Howell, B. Moynahan.

JUNIORS

Row I—E. Post, B. Hall, S. Alexander, M. E. Rossin, L. Miller, M. McKibben.

Row II—B. Jenkins, P. Atkins, S. Eaglesfield, A. Macomber, J. Ballard, N. Barnaby.

Row II—L. Spencer, S. Wishard, M. L. Miller, P. Childs, M. C. Sumner, K. Kraning, J. Cox.

Brazen Basketball

When the wind becomes too cold for hockey, interests turn to the baskets in the upper gym. Foremost on Tudor's winter sports calendar is basketball. Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons found students of all classes trying to put the ball through the hoop or attempting to keep an opponent from making a two-point goal.

This year Tudor assembled a varsity team to play against the team from the Tabernacle Presbyterian Church. The game was hard fought, but the Tudor squad went down in defeat, 42-28.

Other games pitted the freshmen against the eighth grade and the faculty against the students. The freshmen and the students emerged victorious.

Seniors

Row I—J. Holton, J. Cox, M. Lacy.
Row II—M. Harrison, H. Wemmer, B. Moynahan, J. Howell, S. White.

The high light of the entire basketball season was the traditional Green and White conflict. During the week previous to the games, rabbits' ears adorned the heads of the loyal Whites while the Greens' lapels sported giants in their color. The first game was neck and neck, but the Greens' final spurt placed them ahead, the score being 23-21. In the night game the Greens, without the assistance of their star forward, Jo Moynahan, went down before a pressing White team, 19-9. The last and deciding game was even more exciting than the rest, the Whites again emerging victorious with a score of 15-13.

Greens

S. Aikins, B. Moynahan, S. Eaglesfield, C. VanReekum, K. Kraning, J. Cox.

Whites

A. Macomber, N. Rust, P. Atkins, M. McKibben, M. Lacy, J. Holton, J. Howell.

Early in the season each class elected a captain and sent forth its best players to battle it out in the inter-class games. During the seasonal play the experienced seniors emerged victorious in both first- and second-team games. The juniors came the closest to upsetting the champions in their undefeated season during the first-team game, which resulted in a score of 21-20. Jo Moynahan and Sue Eaglesfield were the high point scorers for the season.

In the traditional Residence-Day School game, the "Res," after having tried for many years, equaled the day school in a contest which ended in a 14-14 tie.

Juniors

L. Miller, P. Atkins, C. Van Reekum, J. Ballard, A. Macomber, S. Eaglesfield, M. McKibben, S. Alexander.

Sophomores

Row I—J. Alig, S. Brown, J. Bowen.
Row II—A. Morrison, A. Russel, S. Aikins, M. Nessler, N. Rust.

Freshmen

J. Pearson, J. Cain, L. Sadlier, K. Kraning, L. Spencer, P. Childs, S. Wishard.

Upper Left—Bully for you.
Upper Right—"Just a little tighter, please."
Center—And another point.
Lower Left—Rabid spectators.
Lower Right—A battle casualty.

M. Lacy, B. Moynahan, J. Howell, J. Cox

Athletes Supreme!

Since the year 1949 the white blazers have signified the highest awards in Tudor sports. These are awarded each year to senior girls who have shown unusual sportsmanship and have a good scholastic record and an exceptional talent in sports. This year four girls, Barbara Moynahan, Julia Cox, Judy Howell, and Margot Lacy, proudly accepted these high awards.

Row I—"How can I draw you if you don't hold still!" — "Well, we don't know either." — The grim problems of youth.

Row II—Swing your partner 'round! — A birthday??? — "How much is that doggie in the window?"

Row III—Cheese, everyone. — Is it that interesting? — "Fractured French."

Frolicking Freshmen

Row I—P. Childs, secretary-treasurer.
Row II—M. L. Miller, president; S. Wishard, vice-president.
Row III—Miss Stonemetz, sponsor.

Thirteen members form the merry, well-liked Freshman Class. This group has a fondness for Park, boys (in general), parties, and horses and seems to have no date shortage for they turned out en masse for both the junior and senior dances.

The freshmen are by no means short on brains, with Susan Wishard, Peggy Childs, Elisabeth Hammond, and Margaret Lie Miller taking top honors. In clubs the freshmen also are well represented, having several members in every organization open to them. Along sport lines Kathy Kraning took top honors in basketball by being the only freshman on the Varsity squad. Susan Wishard and Margaret Lie Miller also have been outstanding in this field.

We predict an exciting, fun-packed sophomore year for this all-round class, impossible to ignore!

Row I—J. Pearson, E. Hammond, J. Cain.
Row II—L. Spencer, L. Sadlier.
Row III—B. Hill, C. Burch, K. Kraning, N. Madeira, M. C. Sumner, J. Cox.

Row I—Waiting for the Meridian males to go by! — Buying elephants. — Red Cross enthusiasts.

Row II—Autograph seekers. — Those toothpaste smiles! — More studious moments.

Row I—M. Flowers, S. Eck, M. L. Lynch, E. Davis, J. Alig, D. Dunlap, J. Bowen.

Row II—C. Hine, B. Brown, M. Derry, A. Morrison, S. Aikins, N. Rust, C. Haram, A. Russel.

Slick Sophomores

Row I—L. Barton, president; J. Larsen, vice-president.

Row II—Mlle. Moscherosch, sponsor; P. Brown, secretary-treasurer.

Smart . . . snappy . . . trés cute, the sophomores have a flair for being everywhere at once, and wherever they are, things happen. For instance:

1. Early in the year they made their bid for the class cup by winning the swimming meet. Names in lights? Why, Ann Morrison and Linda Barton, of course.

2. Early in November they lobbied for lipstick and—s'prise—won!

3. Still in the province of new ideas, it was the sophomores who founded that going organization, Les Parisiennes, last year.

4. In February, two of their number retired from public life, buried themselves in newspapers and helped win the STAR "Quiz 'em on the Air" contest.

With such a past, who can foretell what the future holds for the Class of '55?

"I'm going to wash that man right out of my hair." — Up, up and away? — Good joke, eh!!

Grin and bear it! — Cheek to cheek. — "If you want anything, just whistle."

Jaunty Juniors

Scintillating smiles, exploding brains, and slick figures make up the junior class. They participate in every phase of student activity from clubs to sports. With a co-chairman for the Park-Tudor carnival and the junior bid for the class cup in hockey one can easily see their varied interests. Also, in the line of brains, the juniors vie for high academic honors.

The most outstanding event of the year for the juniors was their gala dance on February 7th. Transforming the Tudor gym into a South Sea paradise, they presented their theme, Tropicana. From a little grass shack to the swaying palm trees to pineapples decorating the tables, Bettie Hall and Sally Alexander, as co-chairmen, brought the juniors' weeks of work to a successful climax.

We predict great things for the Class of '54 in their senior year.

Row I—C. Van Reekum, secretary; M. McKibben, president; A. Morrow, vice-president.

Row II—B. Jenkins, treasurer; Miss Haber, sponsor.

Row I—L. Miller, S. Eaglesfield, P. Atkins, M. E. Rossin, J. Ballard, P. Berry.

Row II—B. Hall, S. Alexander, M. Lurie, M. McGrath, A. Macomber, J. Saunders, N. Barnaby, E. Post, C. Hoover.

Row I—Knit one, drop two. — Gay weekend. — Hop! Hop!

Row II—I was wounded. — Crisis?? — But I'm not that strong!

Act III

The following afternoon

"The Play's the Thing"

October 30 found the seniors with knees knocking, teeth chattering, fingers crossed, eagerly anticipating their senior play, "Family Circle," adapted by Anne Coulter Martens from the book by the same name by Cornelia Otis Skinner. The plot is woven around Cornelia's stage ambitions, a lost fraternity pin, and a group of aspiring young actresses.

The audience was delighted with the sparkling humor, the scenes from Shakespeare's "Macbeth" and "As You Like It," and the antics of young Cornelia as she tried to convince her family that she should be an actress. Sterling performances were given by Hildegarde Wemmer, Julie Cox, Judy Howell, and Sarah White in leading roles. The cast was ably assisted by the Artisans Club, who, under the skillful direction of Miss Horsfall, set the stage and worked as crew.

"An Evening in Paris"

Row I—C. Eshelman, T. McNaughton, H. Henderson, M. Kraft, W. Bockstahler, L. Harris, J. Smith, L. Parker, G. Green, J. Keseric, E. Dobbs, C. Hubele.

Row II—N. Woods, M. Stacy, J. Holton, S. White, H. Wemmer, J. Howell, B. Moynahan, M. Lacy, M. Haas, J. Cox, M. Moseley, M. Harrison.

Through the skillful efforts of the Senior Class, the high school was able to spend an evening in Paris on November 22. This was the night of the senior dance, and all the high lights of "gay Paree" were recreated at Tudor for the great occasion. The Tudorites and their escorts danced under twinkling stars to the music of Billy Moore's orchestra, strolled into a candle-lighted sidewalk cafe and, seated at small tables covered with red-checked tablecloths, sipped sparkling ginger ale or took the opportunity to gaze at the Eiffel Tower or Arc de Triomphe. Huge fleur-de-lis glittering on the walls, the figurine of a French artist on the beautifully decorated punch table, and the snappy fractured-French napkins added greatly to the atmosphere.

The seniors enjoyed the dinner given by Jane Holton before the dance and Martha Stacy's open house afterwards.

Above Left—L. Parker, M. Lacy, M. Haas, G. Green. Above Right—M. Harrison, C. Hubele, M. Moseley, E. Dobbs. Center—M. Stacy, B. Moynahan, J. Howell, J. Cox. Lower Left—Seated: M. Stacy, J. Cox, S. White; Standing: F. McNaughton, J. Keseric, M. Kraft. Lower Right—Seated: H. Wemmer, B. Moynahan, J. Howell; Standing: W. Bockstahler, J. Smith, L. Harris.

Will for the Class of '53

"For though with judgment we on things reflect,
Our will determines, not our intellect."— E. Waller.

Julie Cox's self-confidence and boisterous manner we bequeath to Julie Cain.

Margi Haas's nose for news goes to Linda Sadlier, who has one already.

Martha Harrison's careful driving and road etiquette we leave to the future driver training course at Tudor.

Jane Holton bequeaths her classroom technique and stability to Liz Hammond.

Judy Howell's varied assortment of rings, bracelets, and pins plus her velvet-lined jewelry chest goes to Miss Haber for future white elephant sales.

Margot Lacy wills her promptness to Miss McKee, who is learning it the hard way.

Mel Moseley leaves her loquaciousness to be split among Alig, Rust, Bowen, and Dunlap.

Jo Moynahan leaves her Yale male for next year's Culver excursion.

We leave Martha Stacy's varied assortment of station wagons to any future seniors desiring to partake in the national pastime of "crinkle fenders."

Hildegarde Wemmer wills her large house to the residence juniors for use after the next year's senior dance.

Sarah White leaves her ability to be sarcastic at the right (?) time to Miss Sutton, and her holdings at K. M. I. to Miss McCullough (for bigger and better times?).

Nancy Woods leaves her little red lunch pail for Anderson bus trips to Libby Davis.

Prophecy for the Class of '53

"The future is something which everyone reaches at the rate of sixty minutes an hour, whatever he does, wherever he is."—C. S. Lewis.

Julie Cox is staff doctor at K. M. I. and is illustrating a new medical text book with her own cartoons.

Marge Haas is taking her P. G. (Play Girl Degree) in Cuba and other points south.

Martha Harrison we find nobly assisting Tony Hinckle in the coaching of the Butler Bulldogs in several sports including football, basketball, and crew (on the canal).

Jane Holton has signed a new contract for doing the voice of the Muriel Cigar ad: "Why don't you pick me up and smoke me some time!!"

Judy Howell has taken over the editorship of True Confessions magazine, and her latest novel, Away With the Breeze, has just been banned in Boston.

We see Margot with the love-Lee Sandy red hair Reeding her male from John while Ronning around the house.

We see Mel Moseley-ing along to her laboratory, where she, Dr. Einstein, and Dr. Kinsey, are working on a new theory involving Eugenes.

Jo Moynahan is now assistant professor of beach ball, water skiing, and speed boat driving in one of our leading Florida universities.

The Metropolitan Opera and the Ballet Theater have combined their talents to produce an Opera-Ballet. As its star we find none other than our own Martha Stacy playing the role of a nurse.

Hildegarde Wemmer has taken over the presidency of one of the country's leading railroads specializing in boxcars and other such freight.

Sarah White is found in Tibet wearing 108 braids and teaching English literature to the natives.

Nancy Woods has taken over Dorothy Dix's column to the lovelorn and has changed the name to "Suggestions for the Sick at Heart."
